MRS. S. R. BALOGH AND ADOPTED CHILDREN

Judge Richard Martin in Common Pleas Court today was asked to decide a dispute between Mrs. Balogh, 2209 Waverly avenue, Swissvale, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Stella Balogh, Hazelwood, over a child informally adopted by the young wife. The mother-in-law, in a habeas corpus proceeding, contends Mrs. Balogh took the child after she had nursed him to health. The picture shows Godfrey Balogh (center), over whom the dispute is being waged, and two other children adopted by Mrs. S. R. Balogh, Robert John and Robert.

INTEREST on "time money," with which Wall Street gentlemen speculate, dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent yesterday and stocks went gaily upward.

IF JOHN BRACKEN, prime minister of Manitoba, is right, the northern part of his country contains treasure that would shake finance the world over, make our national gold supply a pitiful joke and disrupt the world's credit if it could be produced suddenly.

ACCORDING to Mr. Bracken, the Flin Flon mining region in Northern Manitoba contains 80,000,000 tons of copper, as much zinc, 32,000,000 TONS OF GOLD and 16,000,000 tons of silver. The gold alone would be worth more than a trillion dollars, and "trillion" is a word that even Wall Street hasn't dealt with yet, although it will come.

ROBBER KILLED IN E. E.

One of two Negroes, believed, police say, to be responsible for numerous robberies in the Schenley Farms district, was shot and killed and his companion captured early today in Center avenue, near Craig street, by Patrolman Louis Lemkowitz of the Oakland Police Station. The policeman opened fire after the Negroes are said to have threatened him with revolvers when he went to help a taxicab driver whom the Negroes were attacking.

The dead man was Harry Boler, 30, of 517 Soho street, and his companion is Courtney Hill, 28, of the same address.

Boler died in the Homeopathic Hospital a short time after he was rushed there in the police patrol. Hill is being held in the Oakland Police Station on a suspicious person charge.

According to Lemkowitz, he heard a man calling for help in Center avenue, and upon approaching saw the two men fighting with a taxicab driver. As he approached the patrolman said they turned to run, both drawing revolvers and pointing them at him. He fired several shots and Boler fell to the street. Hill was overtaken a short distance away.

About an hour before the shooting, the pair are believed to have held up and robbed Clarence Marcusin of 523 Overhill street, a Green taxicab driver, in Soho street, near their home. Marcusin was robbed of 85 cents.

Patrolman Lemkowitz appeared before the coroner this morning and, after making a statement, was released on his own recognizance.

TO WED $9,000 BIDDER

Yesterday a Texas war veteran put himself up for sale to obtain money for his needy family. Today—

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A miner's daughter in Frackville, Pa., in a letter to the New York American, today offers to marry anyone who will give $9,000 to her debt-ridden father to keep him from losing his home.

"I am a girl of 19 years," the letter begins. "I work in a factory to help my parents who are in debt up to their necks. My father is a miner. He works hard, but he does not get enough to feed and clothe his family. He owes for the house. He owes for food."

She then lists some of the debts, the greatest of which is a mortgage for $7,000 on the home. She says the house will be sold if they can't get the money. The other bills amount to $2,000.

"So I want to know if you can't help me out," the letter continues. "By that I mean to put an ad in the paper and say I will marry any man for $9,000 to save my parents from being thrown out of house and home. I am the oldest of eight children, and I'll willingly sacrifice myself for that amount just to save them from ruin. My right name and address is Miss Mary Luzuske, 1010 Line street, Frackville, Pa."

YEARNS FOR WEALTH TO AID 20 NEEDIEST HERE

The first of the Twenty Neediest Cases reported by The Sun-Telegraph in its appeal for Christmas gifts for the unfortunate poor—that of the aged couple who face separation and possible removal to institutions because a fall downstairs has made the husband a helpless cripple—aroused compassion. A woman sent $10 for the couple, and with it a note to the effect that she wished she were a multi-millionaire, so that she might not only give greater aid to these unhappy old folk, but might assist all of the Twenty Neediest Cases.

Indict 160 in Fraud

The November grand jury concluded its sitting today by handing down indictments against 160 election officials for irregularities at the September primary election. The indictments comprised 32 election boards together with four overseers, and represent the bulk of the wholesale charges brought following the primary, the most sweeping prosecution of election frauds in the history of the county.

Bills against 10 election officials, representing election boards, were ignored by the grand jury, and the costs were placed on the county.

The indictments included three counts, conspiracy to make a false count and return, making a false count and making a false return. Charges against a number of other election officials have not yet been presented.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner stated that trials of the cases will be started promptly and that two cases will be listed weekly. The trials are expected to be started soon after the first of the year.

(The names of those indicted are carried at the bottom of this page.)

JAPANESE WITH ARMY TRAINING INVITED TO EMIGRATE BY CALLES

How Mexico Planned For Japanese Aid in Event of Future War

Here are excerpts from the draft of a treaty considered by Mexico and Japan:

"Every Japanese subject who may emigrate to Mexico . . . may enter any of its ports . . . free of all immigration restrictions.

". . . Mexico shall grant to . . . Japan the right to establish new navigation routes to connect with all the Pacific ports of the Mexican Republic."

". . . Japan shall obligate itself to select the emigrants . . . taking care that they come from the laboring and farming classes, that they have some military instruction, and . . . that Mexico . . . with the expectation that in the unfortunate case of a foreign war it may demand from them their co-operation in the struggle. . ."

". . . Mexico . . . by virtue of a secret treaty . . . has the right to colonize the districts of San Juan del Norte and Chinandega in Nicaragua, with colonists or emigrants proceeding from Mexico, without regard to nationality or race. . ."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Japanese military aid for Mexico in the event of war with the United States was provided for in the draft of a secret treaty formally submitted to the Japanese government by President Calles in 1926.

The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst papers have the original memorandum containing the text of these startling treaty proposals. This memorandum, addressed to the Mexican Foreign Office for transmission to the Japanese government, bears the handwritten signature of President Calles. It is published by the Hearst papers textually and in facsimile today, for the first time.

Soldier-Colonists

President Calles proposed to Japan in this remarkable state paper that large districts of western and southern Mexico should be colonized by Japanese, from the laboring and farming classes, and that the colonists should have "some military instruction."

He next stipulated that these soldier-colonists should come to Mexico with the expectation that "in the unfortunate case of a foreign war," Mexico might demand from them their co-operation in the struggle. He offered, in order to facilitate their entrance into Mexico, to level all immigration barriers and permit Japanese subjects to enter Mexican ports, whether land or sea, free of all restrictions.

treaty, informed Japan that Mexico had concluded a secret treaty with the Liberal "government" of Nicaragua (published textually by The Sun-Telegraph Monday) whereby Mexico had obtained the right to colonize the Nicaraguan districts of San Juan del Norte and Chinandega.

Brings in Nicaragua

Calles then states, in the same article, that Mexico is not prepared for foreign colonization and proposes that part of the Japanese immigration to the Republic of Mexico should be diverted to these districts in Nicaragua "after a stay of one year on Mexican soil." He offers to pay all transportation expenses for this movement of Japanese to Nicaragua, and proffers the guarantee that any "rights" extended to the colonists by him will be ratified by Nicaragua.

(Editor's Note: The Nicaraguan districts of San Juan del Norte and Chinandega mentioned by Calles in Article VI command the route of the interoceanic canal which the United States hopes to build through Nicaragua, and of the naval base to be located at Fonseca bay for its protection. This was explained by the Hearst papers Monday, together with publication of the secret treaty between Calles and the Nicaraguan Liberals.)

The draft of the Japanese-Mexican agreement, called a "Secret Treaty of Immigration and Colonization," is published in facsimile elsewhere in The Sun-Telegraph. The English translation of its text follows:

"To the Citizen Secretary of Foreign Relations:

"Order: You will transmit to the Citizen Minister of Mexico in Japan, employing the safest methods of transmission, the following:

"Please present to His Excellency, the Prime Minister of His Majesty Yoshohito, the Mikado of Japan, the following memorandum, as a reply to the proposals which His Excellency made to the Government of Mexico for the negotiation of a secret treaty of immigration and colonization, through our legation in Tokio; reporting in cable and in special code the contents of His Excellency's response.

Secret Memorandum

"The Government of Mexico, taking into consideration the proposals presented by His Excellency, the Prime Minister of His Majesty, the Mikado of Japan, for the negotation of a Secret Treaty of Immigration and Colonization between Mexico and Japan, proposes that the said treaty be completed in the following form:

"I. Every Japanese subject who may emigrate to Mexico while this treaty is in effect, may enter any of its ports, whether land or sea, free of all immigration restrictions; such immigrants shall be subject only to sanitary inspection and passport regulations, for which they shall not be out of pocket anything.

"II. The Government of Mexico obligates itself by this treaty to extend every facility to Japanese immigrants for the acquisition of lands suitable for cultivation and adequate for colonization and independent farming operations. These lands to be located in the federal zones of the southern and Pacific coast states of the Mexican Republic. The emigrant shall obligate himself to care for and cultivate the land thus acquired for a period of not less than fifteen (15) years, counted from the date on which he is given possession of it. The land shall be paid for by the emigrant in small annuities beginning five years after having taken possession of it.

Military Instructions

"III. The Government of Mexico shall grant to that of His Majesty, the Mikado of Japan, the right to establish new navigation routes to connect with all the Pacific ports of the Mexican Republic. These new maritime routes shall be subject to the provisions of the Treaty of Amity and Commerce between the governments of Mexico and Japan, signed in October of 1914. The Mexican government shall grant special tariff schedules covering all Japanese products destined to Japanese immigrants engaged in agriculture and colonization.

"IV. The government of His Majesty, the Mikado of Japan, SHALL OBLIGATE ITSELF TO SELECT THE EMIGRANTS WHO ARE INTENDED FOR MEXICO; taking care that they come from the laboring and farming classes. THAT THEY HAVE SOME MILITARY INSTRUCTION and that they come with the understanding that Mexico, issuing such a cordial invitation for their immigration, does so on the firm ground of fraternity and equality, hoping to stimulate the moral and material development of the country, and WITH THE EXPECTATION THAT IN THE UNFORTUNATE CASE OF A FOREIGN WAR IT (MEXICO) MAY DEMAND FROM THEM THEIR CO-OPERATION IN THE STRUGGLE, AND SUCH SACRIFICES AS MAY BE NECESSARY FOR THE PROTECTION OF THEIR OWN INTERESTS.

"V. The government of His Majesty, the Mikado of Japan, by this treaty shall obligate itself that every Mexican emigrant who may arrive at Japanese ports shall enjoy the same privileges and guarantees granted to Japanese subjects in Mexico, including exemption from immigration restrictions and the payment of fees for passport visas.

Pledged to Secrecy

"VI. THE GOVERNMENT OF MEXICO INFORMS THAT OF HIS MAJESTY, THE MIKADO OF JAPAN, THAT BY VIRTUE OF A SECRET TREATY BETWEEN MEXICO AND NICARAGUA WHICH WAS SIGNED RECENTLY WITH THE CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT OF THE SAID COUNTRY, MEXICO HAS THE RIGHT TO COLONIZE THE DISTRICTS OF SAN JUAN DEL NORTE AND CHINANDEGA IN NICARAGUA, WITH COLONISTS OR EMIGRANTS PROCEEDING FROM MEXICO, WITHOUT REGARD TO NATIONALITY OR RACE. TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION THE FACT THAT THE MEXICAN EMIGRANT HAS NOT SUFFICIENT PREPARATION FOR FOREIGN COLONIZATION, THE GOVERNMENT OF MEXICO PROPOSES THAT PART OF THE JAPANESE IMMIGRATION TO THE REPUBLIC OF MEXICO SHOULD BE DELIVERED TO THE REPUBLIC OF NICARAGUA AFTER A STAY OF ONE YEAR ON MEXICAN SOIL. TRANSPORTATION EXPENSES FROM MEXICAN PORTS TO THOSE OF NICARAGUA SHALL BE BORNE BY THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT AND ARE NOT TO BE REPAID BY THE COLONISTS TO THIS GOVERNMENT.

THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT OBLIGATES ITSELF TO PROCURE FROM THE CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT OF NICARAGUA RATIFICATION OF EVERY RIGHT EXTENDED TO THE COLONISTS OF MEXICO.

"VI. The governments contracting this treaty obligate themselves TO GUARD ITS SECRET CHARACTER, FOR THE PURPOSE OF AVOIDING ANY EVIL INTERPRETATION WHICH MIGHT BE GIVEN TO IT INTERNATIONALLY, they agree mutually to put it into effect for a period of twenty-five (25) years counted from the date of its signature and ratification by representatives of the two governments.

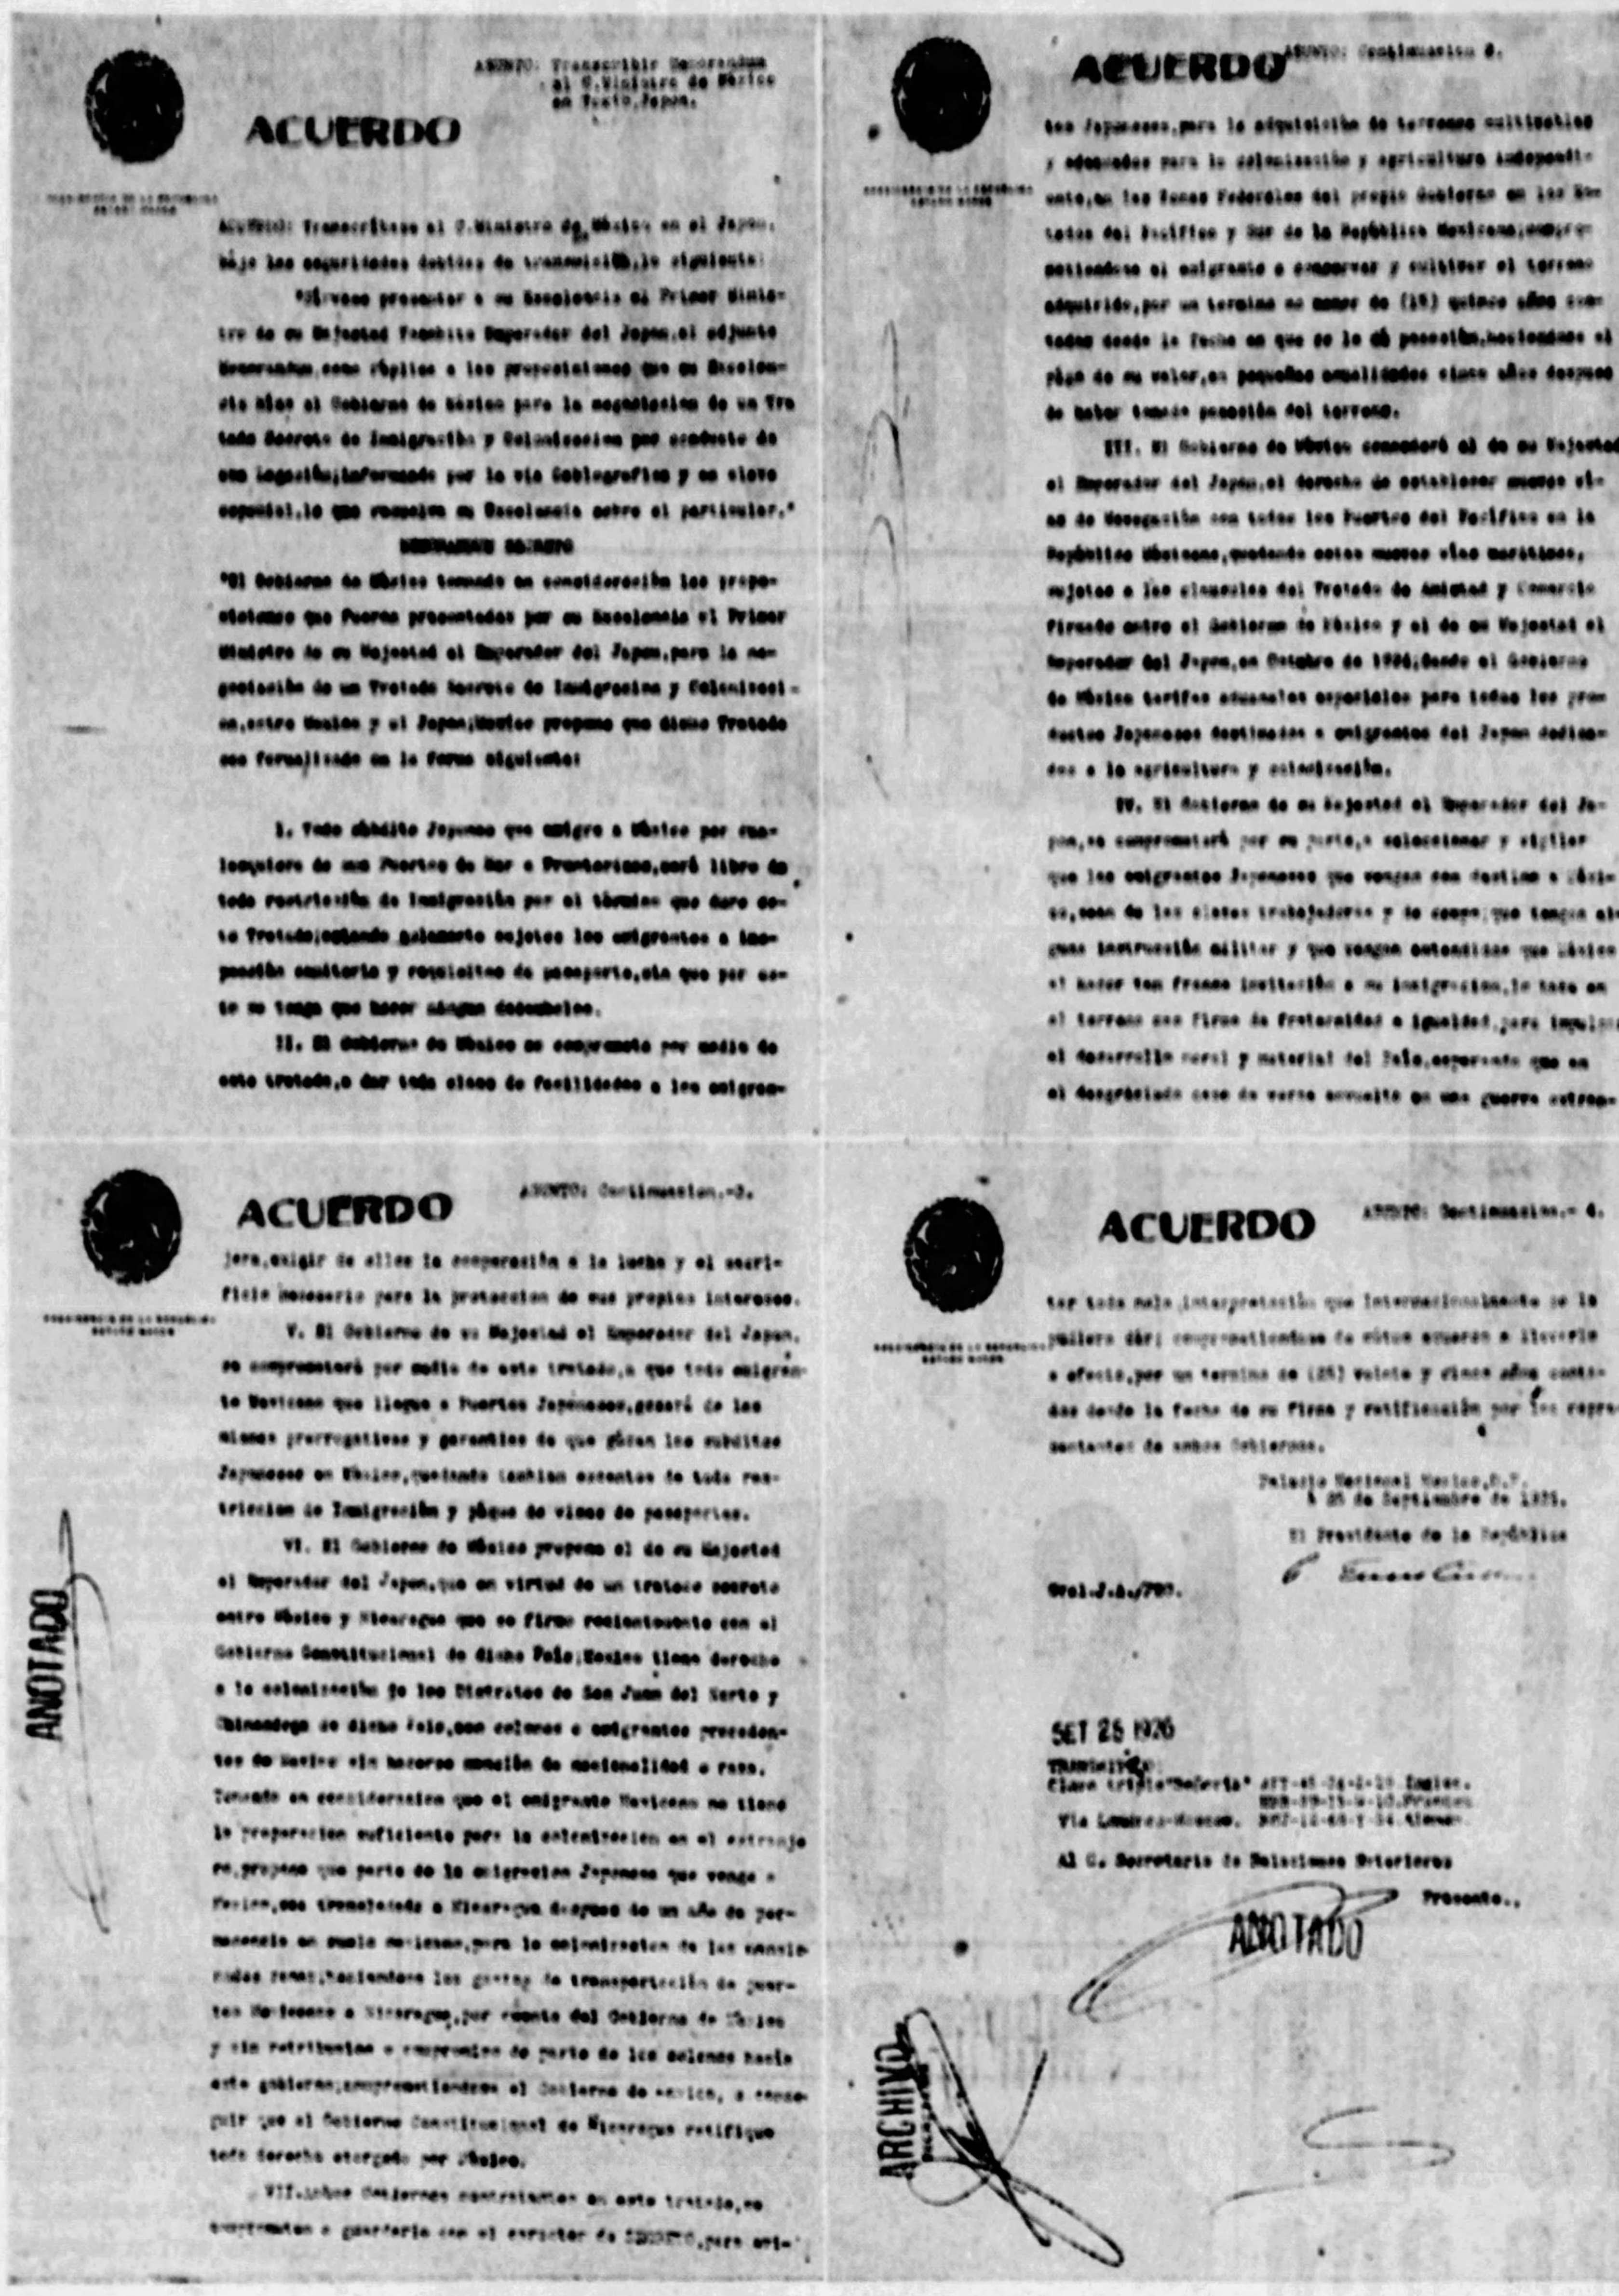
Calles Invites Japanese Colonists



TRANSLATION OF THESE FACSIMILES APPEARS IN THE ACCOMPANYING ARTICLE

Calles Frustrated

President Calles failed in Nicaragua. His failure came because he underestimated his opponents, who proved less dumb than he thought them. American officials in Washington, Mexico City and Managua were not long in concluding that the Liberal movement in Nicaragua was not so much a spontaneous uprising of Nicaraguan patriots as it was a well organized invasion from Mexico. The reasons for this invasion were inquired into, successfully.

Information received in Washington from trusted sources in Mexico and Nicaragua was so completely compromising to the Mexican government that the White House and State Department decided prompt and resolute action was necessary to prevent the installation of an anti-American government in Managua.

Execution of the Nicaraguan clauses of the proposed secret treaty between Mexico and Japan has become impossible. But that does not mean that the treaty draft as a whole will be permitted to lapse.

TODAY

on five successive days, in TWO THOUSAND DAILY NEWSPAPERS.

HENRY FORD understands advertising. First, he spends time, money, effort and thought, producing what the people want, then lets the people know he HAS IT.

MR. FORD starts his new task as enthusiastically as he began more than twenty-five years ago, and every word he says, every detail about his new car, is important news to 115,000,000 people.

The good thing about the new Ford car is it will not disturb any other efficient automobile manufacturer or organization.

Ford will continue inducing people to drive automobiles, encouraging good roads, and his work will increase the sale, as it always has done, of bigger, more expensive cars.

THOSE that buy stocks evidently think Henry Ford has a good new car. His United States stock is not for sale, he owns it all, but stock in his company in Canada went up $105 a share in two days, passing $700 a share. Last May, Henry Ford advised a few of his friends to buy it around $300 a share. It was good advice.

MICHIGAN has a criminal case that ought to satisfy the most ardent prohibitionist. Fred Palm, convicted of possessing a pint of gin, his fourth conviction, is sentenced for that crime to life imprisonment, ccording to Michigan law.

It seems a long time for one pint of gin, especially when you consider that truckloads of it are driven up and down the country by bootleggers that are "in right."

MOUKHTAR BEY, ambassador from Turkey, comes ashore and police guard him, fearing an Armenian attack. Armenians say Moukhtar killed 30,000 Armenians during the war. He says he did not.

IN ANY case, Armenians should settle any political quarrels away from American soil.

ANOTHER Turkish ambassador, the late Mavroyeni Bey, whom all Washington liked, replied to the charge of murdering Armenians as follows: "You talk about Armenians. Where are your Red Indians? I see no Red Indians. What did you do with them?"

IN BUENOS AIRES yesterday Alexander Alekhine, Russian, thirty-five years old, became world chess champion after the eighty-first move in the thirty-fourth game. Jose R. Capablanca, champion since 1921, was driven to the wall. Unfortunately, when you win championship at chess you don't do anything in particular. Intense mental effort is used on non-productive work. The man who can improve, however little, on electric light or the radio is worth more to the world than all chess players.

ANOTHER pathetic detail. Alekhine will not be ready to play again until 1929 and will play for a stake of only $10,000. That would amuse Jack Dempsey and Mr. Gene Tunney. They would not look at a chess board or a squared ring for as little as $10,000.

ALGERIA is suffering from rains that should make us ashamed to complain of our weather, rains that would cause even a modernist to admit that a Noah flood might be possible. Towns are wiped out by floods of water, in some places thirty feet deep. $20,000,000 in damage was done in Northwestern Algeria, hundreds of square miles covered deep with sand and washed soil. Nature seems bent on breaking records for 1927.

AT GENEVA various nations talk about disarmament with the Russian Bear, possessor of one of the biggest armies, the most conspicuous animal in the international zoo.

While nations talk about disarmament, the situation between Poland and Lithuania is worse than ever. We need flying machines. We have had plenty of peace talk.

The Associated Charities of Pittsburgh, Fulton Building.

20 NEEDIEST CASES

There would be no need of donations from the very wealthy if all of the Pittsburghers in modest circumstances would contribute to the extent of their ability. Let every person in this district who can afford to give $10 do so, and the necessities of all the families for whom the plea is made will be more than supplied.

The Founder of Christianity, in honor of whose birthday this fund is being collected, made it plain in the case of the widow's mite that the merit of a gift does not depend on its amount. Small contributions are not to be disdained; there is greater glory in giving a small sum, if it involves sacrifice, than in donating a large amount that will not be missed.

If Pittsburghers could visualize the suffering of the Twenty Neediest Cases and appreciate what their gifts can do to relieve distress there would be quick and generous response. The Sun-Telegraph has been investigating, through the charitable organizations co-operating in the campaign, the cases that were aided through a similar appeal last year, and finds that the relief given them was a veritable Godsend. It saved homes from disruption, and tided families through critical periods.

Here is a typical case: Last year one of the neediest cases was that of a mother and four children, all under 11, who had been deserted by the husband and father. Thanks to the kind hearts of those who answered the appeal, a substantial sum was placed at the disposal of the family.

The Associated Charities, which stood sponsor for them, says: "It has been a joy to see the gratitude of the mother for being allowed to keep her little home and children together. Because of her poor health and her inability to earn anything, she had been in terror for fear the children would be placed in institutions. If the donors to the fund for this family could only realize what it has meant to them during the year they would, indeed, feel repaid."

The Twenty Neediest Cases this year have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. Contributions should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund," and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., or, if preferred, to one of the societies named.

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph. One case will be repeated each day. Here is Case No. 3:

Mr. and Mrs. A were born in Pittsburgh, and have always lived here. They are both intelligent, and when Mr. A was able to work they took good care of their family.

A few months ago Mr. A had a cerebral hemorrhage, which caused paralysis of the entire right side. His condition has been growing steadily worse, and there is no hope of recovery. He is in a government hospital, where he will probably remain the rest of his life.

Since her husband became ill Mrs. A has tried very hard to support her family. A kind-hearted neighbor looks after the children while Mrs. A goes out to wash and scrub.

Fuel, clothing and food supplies must be furnished.

(Reported by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor.)

Case No. 4 will be described tomorrow.

FISHER WINS HALT IN MINE EVICTIONS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 30.—Officials of the Inland Collieries Company have assured Gov. Fisher that they would take "no pre-emptory" action toward the eviction of miners from company houses at Indianola, the Governor announced today.

This assurance followed an inquiry on the part of the Governor regarding an appeal made by wives of striking miners in that section. "The company has assured us that it will take no peremptory action," the Governor declared. "If the company ejects these tenants before they are able to secure shelter I am not certain what the state can do to grant relief. I am considering measures looking to that contingency."

A protest was lodged by 20 wives to the Governor of miners who are on strike. The women sent a telegram to the Governor asking him to use his influence to prevent eviction before winter quarters can be secured for the families. Upon receipt of this request the governor's office communicated with the company and was assured that no immediate ejection of the miners' families was contemplated.

The Inland Collieries Company has made no move to have miners in its Indianola (Pa.) houses summarily ejected despite the fact that the United Mine Workers of America during the last four months, with such ejectment almost certain, have made no move to provide quarters for them, F. T. Weil, of Weil, Christy & Weil, attorneys for the company, declared today.

NO CLUE YET TO VOGEL

A day of continued searching with no apparent results passed yesterday in the hunt for George J. Vogel, of Avalon, chain store head, who disappeared November 13.

City detectives and Pittsburgh police, as well as private detectives, failed to turn up any promising clues yesterday and still are facing an unsolved mystery.

While the missing man failed to return home for the funeral of his son Monday, members of the family still hold a waning hope that he may be found. His brother, William Vogel, associated with him in business, said last night that the missing man often had left home on trips without telling his family where he was going, although he usually told some member of the family when he was about to go.

Saw Beach In Murder Lane

By International News Service.

COURTHOUSE, MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 30.—Although failing to identify the defendant "in the flesh," William Driver, a Slackwood (N. J.) businessman, today took the witness stand and positively identified a huge photograph of Willis Beach as the man he saw driving out of the lane, a half mile from the spot where Dr. William Lilliendahl was slain in a pine scrub.

Another state bomb was hurled into the defense camp within a few minutes with the testimony of Harry F. Sanderson of Sidney, O., who declared he saw a blue coupe near the murder scene and a man resembling Beach run toward it.

With the exception of a preceding witness, J. J. Collins, a tombstone dealer by whom the state sought to show Beach was "establishing an alibi the day after the murder," it was the first time the gray-haired defendant's name had been mentioned during the three days of the trial.

Budget Is Sent to Council

The city budget, totaling $24,973,845, an increase of $1,918,185 over the 1927 appropriations, was sent to Council this afternoon by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

As forecast in the Mayor's letter Monday, the budget, unless pared considerably by Council, will necessitate a tax increase of three mills on land and 1.5 mills on buildings.

Councilman Daniel Winters, president, said today that he expects Council to begin work on the appropriations Monday and that probably both day and night sessions will be held until the tax rate is definitely fixed.

Out of 53 individual department, fund and bureau appropriations listed in the budget, only 23 show decreases. These decreases range from $1.65 for the Division of Registration, Health Department, to $22,238.47 in the department of City Treasurer Wallace Borland. That large decrease is due to the fact that last year there was a $26,500 appropriation for equipment which is not requested for 1928.

The largest increase is a $400,655 boost in the appropriation for the Bureau of Sanitation, all but $635 of which is asked for garbage and rubbish collections because of the increasing tonnage. The second largest increase asked is a boost of $275,636 for the Bureau of Highways and Sewers due to the plan to keep the street cleaning forces on a 12 months' schedule instead of part time as heretofore.

Taxicab bills account for a fair share of the total increase, a boost of $27,775 for that purpose being asked in the appropriation for the Mayor's office alone, a good share of that amount being deficits from 1927. Increases of $120,716 for the Bureau of Police and $220,763 for the Bureau of Fire are accounted for in part by the plan to add 100 policemen and 50 firemen to the force.

These men form the executive committee of a research committee of 43 members recently appointed at the request of the Board of Public Education to study and report on teachers' salaries in Pittsburgh. The action was taken following a largely attended luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel. The committee has begun a comprehensive survey of the teachers' salary question.

JAP BUTLER WAIVES

Koma Akajawa, 34, Japanese butler, employed in an Ellsworth avenue home, waived extradition when arraigned this morning in Central Police Court in connection with a $15,000 jewel and fur robbery in a Boston home, where he was employed a year ago.

He was arrested yesterday by Inspector James Daley of Boston, who has been trailing him for a year and who recovered part of the loot in New York. Before leaving with his prisoner, Inspector Daley stated he expected to recover the remainder of the stolen jewels and apparel on his way back to Boston.

Police Feel High Cost Of Law and Order

The high cost of law enforcement is being felt by the city police and detectives.

With still more than a month to go before the 1928 appropriation for station house supplies and maintenance of the city garage is granted, sergeants today are using common white paper for police court dockets, and detectives are using a dilapidated "flivver" as an emergency car.

Police sergeants have begun to use the plain white paper, which they must rule themselves, because the fund appropriated for the printing of the regular dockets ran out about the same time that the docket supply was exhausted. The supply of plain paper is low, and in a few days sergeants will be forced to buy their own paper.

The high-speed detective car, used day and night since it was purchased some months ago, gave up the ghost two weeks ago, and since then has been in the city garage in need of repairs.

Money appropriated for the use of taxicabs by the detectives in emergencies ran out a week ago and a "flivver" of ancient vintage was resurrected in the West End station. The "flivver" and personally-owned cars have been used since for hurry-up calls.

Council Ponders Who Ordered Grise Raid

Who ordered the raid on Hotel Grise? Why was the raid ordered? Why was the hotel wrecked in the course of the raid? What is going to be done to the officers who participated in the affair.

Those questions were addressed to Director of Public Safety James M. Clark yesterday when Council took up the claim of Oliver Grise for damages, amounting to $13,401 caused by the wrecking of his hotel by the police in the course of the raid. The claim was held over pending answers to the questions.

AMERICAN HELD FOR RANSOM

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—An American, H. W. Thompson, manager of a mine at Copala, state of Guerrero, has been kidnaped by 20 bandits, dispatches from Mazatlan said today.

The bandits demanded 5,000 pesos (roughly $2,500) ransom.

Thompson was captured and taken to the mountains after the bandits attacked his home and were refused money and arms.

They threatened to kill him if the authorities were notified before the ransom was paid.

One of Thompson's employes notified headquarters in Mazatlan, state of Sinola. The employe was instructed to send a messenger to pay the ransom and obtain his employer's release.

The military commander, Gen. Leopoldo Rios, ordered that the bandits be pursued immediately and that Thompson be rescued.

Gifts to Blast Fund Reach High Mark

Pittsburgh's great heart opened wide in behalf of sufferers from the North Side blast of November 15, until today the voluntary fund contributed by readers of The Sun-Telegraph, without any solicitation, reached a total of $3,461.07.

The pennies of children and "the widow's mite," as one contribution was described by the donor, piled up until on an average more than $200 a day has come in to The Sun-Telegraph alone to aid those made destitute and homeless by the gas tank explosion, which took a toll of 28 lives.

Church organizations, Sunday schools, public school and high school classes have made up their collections and sent them to The Sun-Telegraph to aid the sufferers. As each day's fund was totaled a check for that amount was sent to the Red Cross to aid in its disaster relief. Contributions came from as far away as Savannah, Ga., and Columbus, O. The Sun-Telegraph is proud of its readers.

MRS. LILLIENDAHL

MURDERERS' LANE

In this little lane, leading through the woods, Dr. William Lilliendahl was murdered. His automobile, in which he and his wife, Margaret, were riding at the time, stands at the entrance to the lane. The wife and Willis Beach, a neighbor of the New Jersey narcotic specialist, are on trial at Mays Landing, charged with the killing.

BOOST COUNTY'S JAIL REMOVAL PROGRAM

The proposal to remove the Allegheny County Jail buildings and convert the site into a plaza in the scheme for the concourse approach of the new Liberty Bridge, was given a boost today in a letter in which the County Commissioners were urged to proceed with their complete improvement plan by the Jail Removal Association, an organization of property owners in the Uptown district.

Issue is taken with the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects, whose objections to the removal of the jail were set forth in a letter to the Commissioners last week. Thomas E. Wall, writing for the Jail Removal Association, says:

"We agree with the architects that the work of H. H. Richardson should be preserved; but we believe the architects have chosen the wrong masterpiece.

"The Courthouse is also Richardson's work, but having attached to it the jail building detracts from the beauty of the Courthouse; the splendor of Richardson's Courthouse architecture is lost to the public because a perspective of the structure is not possible at present from any of its four sides.

"Under the plan of the Commissioners of converting the jail site into a public square or plaza this at once prominently exposes the entire Ross street front or facade to advantageous display.

"We believe the time is ripe for you to proceed with the entire program and we trust that you will consider carrying out the program in its entirety and not piecemeal; we think it a costly procedure only to build a six-story county building now, and, at a great expense and loss, to build the remaining floors later."

JAIL SITE PROPOSED AS PUBLIC SQUARE

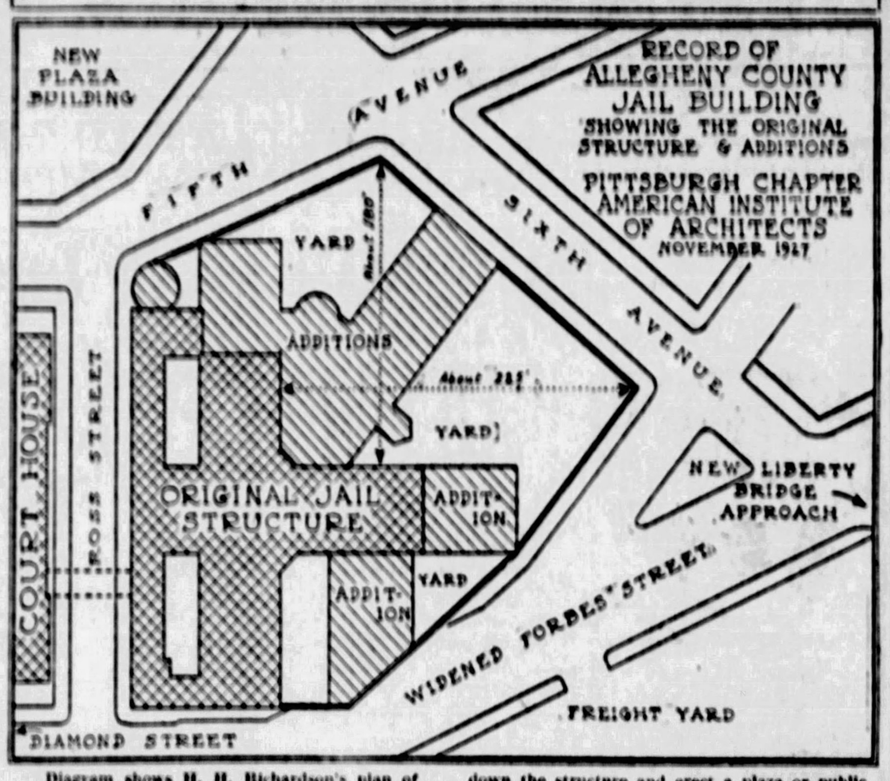

Diagram shows H. H. Richardson's plan of original jail buildings and the numerous wings added in later years. It is now proposed to tear down the structure and erect a plaza or public square on its site, about which traffic from the new Liberty bridge will center.

M'GOVERN AUDIT TO RESUME

County Controller Charles C. McGovern's public audit of county affairs—interrupted at election time by the controller's illness—probably will be resumed tomorrow morning. For a week Mr. McGovern has been in New York, recuperating.

He will return today to attend a meeting of the county salary board to discuss overtime for employes of the County Commissioner's office, who prepared election paraphernalia.

ROAD PROGRAM NEARLY HALF FINISHED

If favorable weather continues for the next week or 10 days more than half of the 50 miles of unimproved roads in the county, forming the secondary road system, will be completed. According to Director Norman F. Brown, County Public Works Department, more than 15 miles of roads has been completed, while sections of other roads of the secondary system heretofore impassable during the winter months to vehicular traffic, have been improved to a point where they will serve ordinary traffic needs throughout the year.

The cost of improving the roads was estimated at $1,000,000. Supt. John A. Fugassi, of the County Road Maintenance Department, expected to have all of the unimproved roads in condition to permit traffic over them by the middle of December. The department will be unable to accomplish their plans, as work on the roads was retarded considerably during the heavy rains of last April and May.

LET 10 GO IN SOUTH SIDE KILLING

Ten boys arrested by police in their investigation into the death of Henry J. Imhoff, 42, of 732 Schuler street, who died with a fractured skull in Mountain street early today, have been released by Coroner W. J. McGregor.

According to the boys, they taunted Imhoff, and he caught Conrad Feiling, of 614 Hanger street. Feiling broke away, they said, and a moment later Imhoff fell to the ground, striking his head. The boys said Imhoff previously had fallen down a flight of steps at a saloon at 582 Mountain avenue.

When Imhoff failed to arise the boys summoned police, who sent Imhoff to a hospital. He was dead when he arrived there.

Home Ownership on the Installment Plan

¶ Our monthly payment mortgage plan was created for people who wish to pay off their mortgages in monthly installments.

¶ The accompanying table shows how a $1,000 mortgage is automatically paid at the end of ten years and two months by monthly deposits of $11.00.

¶ Observe how each month the interest charge grows less as the amount paid off on the mortgage increases.

¶ At all times you pay interest only on the exact amount owed at the end of each month.

¶ The monthly rate in this plan is $11.00 per thousand, which includes both payment of interest and reduction of principal. A five thousand dollar mortgage, for example, is retired on the basis of $55.00 monthly.

¶ Our mortgage department, in charge of Mr. C. W. Kiser, is always ready to entertain applications for mortgages on this plan for small or large amounts. We of course require sufficient security for the loan.

¶ An attractive booklet "You Can Own Your Own Home," which explains all details, is free.

¶ Call or send for a copy.

May McAvoy and Molly Day Chosen for Feminine Leads In Barthelmess Photoplay

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.

I HAD almost begun to think that Richard Barthelmess might make "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" without a leading lady, there was so much negotiating going on. But Richard is to have two feminine leads. So, you see, it pays to wait. May McAvoy, for whom negotiations with Warners have been going on for the past month, is to play one of the important roles, and Molly O'Day the other.

The little O'Day girl—Sally O'Neil's sister—played opposite Dick in "The Patent Leather Kid." At the time she was engaged, Al Rocket gave her the job in spite of a lot of advisors who thought he was taking too great a risk.

Now Molly is back at First National, signed by Henry Hobart, producer of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." Al Santell, the director, hopes to do a repeat on "Tol'able David," Barthelmess' best picture—and also laid in the hills.

The great American mystery is solved. Cecil De Mille has let it be known what stage actor wins the gold-plated distinction of playing the boy in "The Godless Girl." His name is George Duryea and he is a well-known juvenile stage actor who has a list of successes to his name. He is good looking, attractive, and all agog over Hollywood and the film celebrities. He was a guest at the Mayfair Club Saturday night and I don't believe there was anyone there who had so good a time. He can ask more questions to the minute on who is who and what is what in Hollywood than anyone with whom I ever talked. That's a good sign, though. It shows interest and it shows enthusiasm. Also, he is a good dancer. That shows a rhythmic sense of time.

Camilla Horn has captivated everyone on the United Artists lot. She is so attractive and endowed with such a magnetic personality that everyone from the gateman to John Considine is prophesying a great future for her. I might say, Mr. Considine is so sold on her that instead of waiting for John Barrymore's "Cellini," she begins work almost immediately on "The Stenog," a comedy-drama to be directed by Sam Taylor. Miss Horn will have a leading man, or perhaps I'd better say she will have some well-known American actor, to co-star with her. She doesn't speak a word of English, but neither did Vilma Banky when she first arrived in this country. However, she is skilful with the pencil and she is able to sketch the food she wants to order in case Eddie Brandstatter of the Montmartre, or Col. Beaton of the Roosevelt, isn't able to interpret.

Hollywood is like a small town when it comes to gossip. A rumor starts, and before a week goes by it is as well circulated as if it occupied the front page of every newspaper in town. Someone started the story that Vera Reynolds was through at the Cecil De Mille studios. "Buzz-buzz-buzz," went the report. A terrific battle, as emotional as the one between C. B. and Jetta Goudal was given as the reason. The De Mille studios now take pleasure in stating that this rumor is without foundation and that Miss Reynolds will start work almost immediately on "Walking Back." Arthur Lake, who made his debut as one of the boys in "The Cradle Snatchers," has been signed to play the juvenile lead opposite Miss Reynolds.

Thanksgiving probably never has meant very much to Josephine Borio, who comes from Turin, Italy. Yet, it is likely she will remember Thanksgiving, 1927, as long as she lives, for it was on that day that she was given a contract by Louis B. Mayer as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player. Miss Borio is not a case of sight unseen, for she played John Gilbert's sister in "The Cossacks" and did so well that it was decided to sign her immediately. She also has played with Norma Shearer in "The Demi-Bride" and Pola Negri in "Barbed Wire". Not a bad record for a 19-year-old girl.

There will be no dearth of mystery plays this next year. Every stage play of the mysterious melodrama type has been snapped up by the producers who realize this is the entertainment the public enjoys. Universal bought "The Last Warning" sometime ago. "The Last Warning" is one of the most spooky of all mystery plays. It is the kind that makes you look around at the person sitting next to you to see if they have a hatchet concealed up their sleeve. At any rate, Paul Leni, who did so well with "The Cat and the Canary," is to direct and Al Cohn is writing the continuity.

December 4 is given as the opening date for Francis X. Bushman's appearance here at the Orpheum in a vaudeville sketch called "Passengers." Mr. Bushman has such faith in this sketch that he is announcing that he is leaving the screen for an indefinite period to devote his time to the stage. He hopes his audeville appearance will be all that he expects.

"I know you," said a gushing young woman to Clayton Hawley, new head of First National. Mrs. Hawley, who was with her husband in Tiajuana, stopped to listen. "You can't fool me—you're Emil Jannings." There were so many film people at the opening of the racing season it is no wonder the young lady got her film celebrities mixed. Everyone was there. In fact, the clubhouse on Thanksgiving looked like a motion picture convention.

"What'll I Give?" for Christmas Solved

The Christmas invasion, wherein all the favorite comic characters of the newspaper cartoons will besiege Christmas stockings, has begun.

For "All the Funny Folks," the story book of the comics people that appear daily and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph, is being bought everywhere throughout the Tri-state territory. The price, 69 cents, is remarkably low for such a book. Illustrated with 500 drawings in color, well bound in green cloth with the story of these characters running through 112 pages, the sale has stimulated hundreds of orders received alone by the circulation department of the Sun-Tele. Dealers throughout the district have felt the same demand. It is agreed that the Christmas gift for the children—the ideal one for the top of their Christmas stocking—is "All the Funny Folks."

Elsewhere in this paper an advertisement carries a coupon. With this and the 69 cents in stamps, of small denomination, or a money order or check, the circulation department of the Sun-Telegraph will send a copy. But dealers handling the books are near you. "Mama's Boy" Gets Role With Murnau.

Remember Barry Norton, the mother's boy in "What Price Glory"—a slender, childish looking lad who furnished the sob in the picture? Well, Berry is to emote for F. W. Murnau in "The Four Devils," which is mostly the story of youth and a circus. The other youngster chosen to play one of the leading male roles is Charles Morton, also a newcomer and a youngster who is making headway in the movies. The only older person of any consequence is J. Farrell McDonald, who plays the part of the clown.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Chamber Music To Be Played December 17.

Music lovers will have an opportunity of hearing a novel program of chamber music when the Yost String Quartet gives its second concert of the season in the Hotel Schenley ball room Saturday evening, December 17. Domenico Caputo, clarinetist, will be the guest artist and he will assist in a performance of the Brahms clarinet quintet, a work that has not been heard in Pittsburgh for many years. Another item of interest on the program will be the first Pittsburgh hearing of the fourth quartet by Darius Milhaud, who belongs to the ultra-modern group of French composers. A group of short numbers will complete the program. The members of the Yost quartet are Gaylord Yost, first violin; Roy Shumaker, second violin; Carl Rosenberg, viola, and James Younger, 'cello.

McCORMACK TO SING IN MOSQUE TOMORROW

The first Pittsburgh recital of the noted tenor, John McCormack, in several seasons will be given in Syria Mosque at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Lauri Kennedy will be the assisting 'cello soloist and Edwin Schneider, accompanist. Mr. McCormack is winning new laurels on his tour this season, it being said he sings more effectively than ever. He will sing a number of Irish folk songs and several other groups, including "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded?" "The Short Cut to the Roses" and "The Snowy Breasted Pearl." Requests have been made that the singer add some of the songs which have come to be commonly looked upon as typical McCormack numbers. The Pittsburgh recital is given under the management of James A. Bortz.

Marmont to Return to American Screen.

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.—There is sure to be a flattering welcome on the mat for Percy Marmont when he returns to the screen in "The Stronger Will," a Burton King production. Of all the English and foreign actors, there is none more popular than the polished Englishman, who at one time was considered the final word in screen heroes. Then, he went to England and for a time we didn't see him.

Mr. Marmont's return is also the debut of Rita Carewe, daughter of Edwin Carewe and baby Wampas star of last year. While Miss Carewe has had several minor roles, this is the first time that she has been dignified by the coveted title of leading lady. She plays opposite Mr. Marmont. Thomas Holding, who used to emote opposite Pauline Frederick in the days when chest heaving was considered good technique, has an important role.

Movie Gang Keeps Mr. Bancroft a "Crook."

"The gang wouldn't let me go straight." Such could be the plaint of George Bancroft, film actor, following the announcement that another crook melodrama is being planned for him by Paramount—a picture that will resemble in characterization and locale his recent tremendous success, "Underworld."

The new vehicle has the working title "Nightstick," and is being written as an original by Oliver H. P. Garrett, New York newspaperman and writer of adventure short stories.

B. P. Schulberg, associate producer at the Paramount Studio in Hollywood, has indicated that he may combine in the new vehicle three of the principal actors of "Underworld," so great was their performances in that picture. These are Bancroft, Clive Brook and Evelyn Brent, although this is by no means definitely set at this time.

"Nightstick" will follow a vehicle now being prepared as Bancroft's first starring picture, an untitled story of the Tampico oil fields, adapted by Hope Loring from a stage play by Houston Branch.

Conway Tearle to Leave Films for Stage.

By Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30.—Conway Tearle, former film star, announced today he is returning in a few days to New York and the stage.

Tearle said he is forced to go back to the stage to earn his living, after spending a year and a half in an unsuccessful struggle with film producers.

Charging a conspiracy was directed against him to keep him from acting in motion pictures, Tearle complained to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences several months ago. When this effort failed of success, Tearle declared he would go into court, but later dropped the idea.

The actor said he has four New York stage offers.

NEW FORD HOLDS ROAD EASILY AT 55 OR 60

Henry Ford today announced the specifications of the new Ford car. Unusual speed and acceleration are among the outstanding features. It is announced as being able to make 55 to 60 miles an hour. In tests it has made even more. It is stated that when traveling at such speeds it holds the road easily. In high gear tests with two passengers it has shown an acceleration of from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 8¼ seconds.

The car also introduces a new type of four-wheel brakes of the mechanical, shoe-expanding type, self-centering. The brake pedal and the hand brake each operates all four wheels. It is stated that this is the most reliable and simplest type of four-wheel brake.

The engine, stated to be practically vibrationless, develops 40 horsepower at 2,200 revolutions per minute. The low revolution speed is a factor in lessening vibration. The bore is 3⅛ inches, stroke 4¼ inches. The unusually large crankshaft, both statically and dynamically balanced, weighs 28 pounds. This balancing, combined with the lightness of aluminum alloy pistons, further combine to reduce vibration. It is announced that the car is unusually quiet and the cams have been so designed to prevent valve clicking.

The coachwork of the car is distinctive. There is a European touch in line and contour. The interior shows roominess, convenience and appointments found in higher priced automobiles. On an instrument board of satin-finished nickel are mounted the speedometer, gasoline gauge, ammeter and ignition lock, with a dashlight in the center. The new military type sun visor is a feature of the closed models. Narrow pillars and wide doors give maximum vision. Nickeled radiator shell and head lamps accentuate the exterior, while choices of four colors in pyroxylin finish are offered.

The ignition embraces only one coil, in a waterproof case. There are no vibrators to adjust and no exposed cables. The distributor is on top of the engine.

Centrifugal water pump, large radiator and propellor-type fan make the car difficult to overheat.

From 20 to 30 miles to a gallon of gasoline, depending upon driving speed, is the gasoline consumption announced. Feed to carburetor is by gravity.

The oiling system is a combination of pump, splash and gravity feed. The new transmission is of the selective sliding gear type, with standard shift, three speeds forward and one reverse. The main shaft runs on ball bearings, the counter-shaft on roller bearings and the reverse idler on bronze bearings.

Multiple dry-disc clutch, rear axle of three-quarter floating type housed in electrically welded steel, and spiral bevel gear drive are features. Springs of the transverse semi-elliptic type and hydraulic shock-absorbers are used.

Steel spoke wheels, welded into a one-piece assembly, are provided.

There are six models of the new car. They are the phaeton, roadster, sport coupe, coupe, Tudor sedan and Fordor sedan.

A display of cars will be held at Motor Square Garden Friday and Saturday.

DINNER TONIGHT FOR PATTERSON

Among political figures of Pennsylvania who are here to attend the testimonial dinner to be tendered Judge-elect Frank P. Patterson this evening at the William Penn Hotel are former Lieut. Gov. Edward E. Beidleman and William Gallagher, of Luzerne county, formerly chief clerk of the State Senate.

Mr. Beidleman will be one of the speakers, and United States Senator David A. Reed will deliver the principal address. An exceptional attendance seems assured, and the guests will include many women. The program will include acts from the theaters. Judge-elect Patterson ascends the Common Pleas bench in January.

RIVALRY IS CUT BY CUSTOMER OWNERSHIP

Competition in many lines of business is being eliminated today because of customer ownership, C. S. Coler, manager of the educational department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, declared in an address yesterday before the Credo Club of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce.

He believes that in the matter of customer ownership, the public utilities offered the most fertile field. He also averred that the idea of the company union, an organization of employes to discuss and settle their own problems is gaining headway.

He declared that the people of the United States had actually earned more than had been accumulated in all time by the people of any one European nation, such as England, France or Germany.

REVEALS MATE SLEW TOT

WESTON, W. Va., Nov. 30.—Five years ago, with a blow of his fist, Earl Marsh, 35, of Brownsville, a remote hamlet, killed his 2-day-old child, according to a statement of his wife.

A first degree murder charge has been lodged against Marsh, who is in jail in connection with the recent dynamiting of the Clark Pumphrey home at Perry Station.

The wife told state police she was afraid to tell before her husband was taken into custody, as he had threatened to kill her.

WIDOW WINS SUIT AGAINST PHYSICIAN

A verdict for $750 was returned yesterday in Common Pleas Court against Dr. George B. Moreland in a damage suit instituted by Mrs. Frances Stackhouse, widow of Percy E. Stackhouse. It was alleged that a rubber tube had been left in the head of her husband for 33 days, following an automobile accident in which Stackhouse received a severe scalp wound.

Dr. Moreland did not treat Stackhouse from January 18 until March 2, 1925. He had no knowledge, he testified, that the tube had not been removed.

Stackhouse at the time of his death was discount clerk at the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A. He died suddenly and it is claimed that although the wound healed after the tube was removed, the fact that it had been left in his head so long contributed to his death.

WRONG TO JOKE ABOUT YOUR HEALTH!

Don't let friends "kid" you when they say, "You're looking fine". Because you know how often you feel weak, nervous, headachy, stomach not so good, and other spells. Some of these slight attacks may be symptoms of System Poisoning—professionally called TOXEMIA. Ordinary laxative pills and waters do not eliminate the poisonous wastes that bring on TOXEMIA. Far better to get a box of PARTOLA, the internal antiseptic and laxative. Take two of these mint-flavored wafers at night, clean out the poisons, then your friends can truly say "you're looking fine". All good druggists sell regular box of PARTOLA 30¢, double size 50¢.

Raiders Chop in Roof to Get Moonshiner

DOVER, Nov. 30.—The fire department hacked three holes yesterday in the roof before Marko Goblich, Bank street, could be removed from the attic of his home, where he had barricaded himself behind two stills, 11 barrels of mash and 100 gallons of rye and prune whisky.

Sheriff Abe Laird, Police Chief William Byers, Traffic Officer Frank Javens and Deputy Sheriff Theodore Beichly besieged Goblich, who almost asphyxiated, was found under the attic gable, where he had sought an air hole to escape the fumes of a tear gas bomb Laird had exploded. Javens fired two shots into the attic and hacked holes in the loft door in vain. Goblich, who withstood a four hours' siege, will face Mayor H. J. Groh tomorrow.

WOMEN'S MISSION SOCIETY TO GIVE RELIGIOUS PLAY

Young women of the Greenfield Presbyterian Church tonight at 8 o'clock will present the three-act religious drama, "Two Masters," under the auspices of the congregational Women's Missionary Society. The play, which will be given in the church, is for the benefit of mission projects in America and overseas.

Asks Solid Support For Amendment

Chambers of commerce, civic bodies and all political and non-political groups of men and women interested in "the betterment of our system of government, the protection of the ballot, the sanctity of the count and the inalienable right of the people to select their own office-holders" were called upon by Senator Frank J. Harris today to indorse the proposed amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution to authorize voting machines. Senator Harris introduced the measure at the last session of the Legislature. Previously it had been introduced by his brother, the late Senator John P. Harris.

The proposed change in the method of voting in Pennsylvania cannot be construed as a party measure, Senator Harris declared, and deserves the supoprt of all who desire to serve the community. He appealed for support in a campaign of information, to be inaugurated immediately.

Senator Harris said:

"Now that the primaries and the general election of 1927 have passed into history, it seems to me the time is ripe for the major political parties, for political leaders and for all factions in the body politic to unite in a common movement designed to stimulate interest in the subject of voting machines. It is, in my judgment, a particularly opportune moment for public spirited men and women of every shade of political belief to discuss freely and advocate energetically this movement for the safeguarding of the ballot.

"Conditions which developed at the recent primary election, coupled with many years of hectic experience with the Baker ballot system, should, to every open mind, furnish convincing proof that a change is necessary if we are ever to have any semblance of honest elections and fair counts.

"The success which has attended the use of voting machines wherever and whenever they have been employed has firmly established in the minds of unbiased observers as well as the most astute students of political systems that, while machines cannot be regarded as a 'cure-all,' nor as a panacea for every ill that afflicts our system of government by popular vote, nevertheless they do go farther in this direction and are a more effective preventive of fraud and error than any other means which, up to this time, has been either suggested or applied.

"Years ago it was believed that the Australian ballot system would serve the purpose of clean elections and honest counts, but this mode, with its cumbersome complexities, has thrown no absolute safeguard around our ballot boxes. The need of greater protection has long been recognized, and the voting machine is unquestionably the nearest approach to a perfect system with which the American states have yet experimented."

THE NEW FORD CAR

will be on display

FRIDAY

(and Saturday)

MOTOR SQUARE GARDEN

Baum Blvd. at Beatty St., East Liberty

Ford Motor Company

Detroit, Mich.

¶See the nearest Ford dealer on Friday for pictures and full details of the new car. See the car itself Friday and Saturday at Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh.

The New Ford Car will sell at a SURPRISINGLY LOW PRICE

Complete details of the new car which will be officially announced this FRIDAY

THE MINUTE you see the pictures of the new Ford car you will be delighted with its low, smart lines and the artistic color combinations. There, you will say, is a truly modern car.

But a still greater thrill awaits you when you slip into the roomy seat behind the wheel and start away for your first ride. Then you will know that you have found the most unusual value ever offered in a low-price car.

You will like the feeling of speed and power that the new Ford gives you—the comfortable, prideful feeling that comes from having a car worthy of any occasion and equal to every emergency.

You will like the flexibility and safety of the new Ford car as you weave in and out of city traffic—its flashing pick-up as the light turns green and the sign says "Go." You will like its smooth, quiet steadiness on the open road where you can lazy along according to your mood, or do 55 and even 65 miles an hour if you desire. The new Ford has unusual speed—no doubt of that!

A smart, low, speedy car that has been built to endure

The new Ford will climb hills that you never thought a low-price car would climb on high. It will pass cars that you never thought you could pass. The longest trips will seem easy, for here is a car that puts new joy in motoring.

There is still another reason why the new Ford car is the most outstanding value ever offered in a low-price car. An important three-word reason that means a great deal to you —endurance—durability—long life.

The new Ford car is made to stand up under thousands upon thousands of miles of steady running over all kinds of roads. It has even more stamina than the Model T Ford because we have learned to make every part stronger and sturdier without increased weight or greatly increased cost.

Many of the Model T Ford cars are still in active service after 75,000, 100,000 and 150,000 miles. This new Ford car will do even better. In the words of Henry Ford: "It is our ambition to have every piece of machinery or non-consumable product that we turn out so strong and so well-made that no one ought ever to have to buy a second one."

Four-wheel brakes and standard, selective gear shift

On the right we are printing, for the first time, the complete details of the new Ford car. Read them over carefully, especially the paragraphs dealing with the new engine, the new bodies, the new standard, selective gear shift transmission with roller bearings, the new four-wheel brakes, the new hydraulic shock absorbers, the new mechanical design ignition, the new oiling system, and the new dry-plate, multiple-disc clutch.

Then decide that whatever else you do Friday you are going to set aside at least fifteen minutes to get the full story of the new Ford car. It is more than a new automobile. It is the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

FEATURES OF THE NEW FORD CAR

55 TO 65 MILES AN HOUR

The new Ford has unusual speed. It will do 55 to 60 miles an hour with ease. This is a conservative statement. In many road tests it has exceeded 65 miles an hour. So well does the new car hold the road that you can travel at high speed for long stretches with a new feeling of comfort and safety. Even bad roads may be taken at a fast pace. You will be delighted too with the way the new Ford climbs the hills. You will face the steepest grades with confidence, knowing you have power and power to spare to climb them all without greatly reduced speed, without strain, or unnecessary shifting of gears.

40-HORSE-POWER ENGINE

At 2200 revolutions per minute, the new Ford four-cylinder engine develops 40 horse-power. This r. p. m., or revolution speed, is low for such power and shows that the engine is unusually efficient. It also means long life, for the lower the speed of the engine, the less the wear on its parts. The bore is 3¼ inches and the stroke 4¼ inches. (S. A. E. and N. A. C. C. rating for license purposes, 24.03 horsepower.)

REMARKABLE ACCELERATION

The new Ford is remarkably quick on the get-away. In tests in high gear, with a Tudor sedan body and two passengers, it has accelerated from 5 to 25 miles per hour in 8½ seconds. This acceleration is an outstanding feature of the new Ford car.

PREVENTING VIBRATION

The engine in the new Ford is practically vibrationless. This is due in part to its lower r. p. m., the statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft, and the aluminum pistons. To insure quiet, the timing gears are made of bakelized fabric instead of metal, and the cams on the camshaft are so designed that the valve push rods follow them closely, preventing valve clicking.

GASOLINE ECONOMY

You will get from 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline, depending on the speed at which you drive. Feed to the carburetor is by gravity from a unique welded one-piece steel tank integral with the cowl.

UNIQUE NEW OILING SYSTEM

The oiling system is distinctly Ford in design, being a combination of pump, splash, and gravity feed. The pump delivers the oil to the valve chamber, from which it flows by gravity feed to the main bearings of the crankshaft. An oil dipper is provided on each connecting rod bearing cap, so that the force of rotation of the crankshaft drives oil into the connecting rod bearings, as well as splashing oil over all working parts within the engine. This is a simple but entirely dependable system, assuring proper lubrication of each bearing and each cylinder without pressure.

PERFECTED COOLING

The new Ford car has a centrifugal water pump, and large radiator. The fan runs on the pump shaft and is made according to airplane propeller design. It is exceedingly difficult to make the new Ford engine overheat; only abuse will do it, such as running without enough oil.

IGNITION SYSTEM OF NEW DESIGN

The ignition system of the new Ford is unique in mechanical design, extremely simple, and will give the car owner exceptional performance with a minimum of trouble. There is only one coil, in a water-proof case. The distributor is located on top of the engine where it is clean and easily accessible. Connections are made to the spark-plugs by short bronze springs. The coincidental lock on the new Ford is placed in the ignition circuit. It not only replaces the regular ignition switch, but in the "off" position grounds the entire circuit. From the switch to the distributor a steel cable protects the primary current wire, this wire being grounded to the distributor casing, thereby making it impossible to wire around the device. The new generator is of the power-house type.

STANDARD, SELECTIVE GEAR SHIFT

The new Ford transmission is of the selective sliding gear type, with standard shift. It has three speeds forward and one reverse. The main shaft runs on ball bearings, the countershaft on roller bearings, and the reverse idler on a bronze bearing. This is the highest type of bearing mounting and is unusual on light cars. All gears are made of heat-treated chrome alloy steel. You will be delighted with the easy, noiseless shifting of gears in this new transmission. You can go from one to another easily, silently, with the pressure of a finger.

EXCEPTIONALLY EASY TO STEER

The steering gear on the new Ford car is irreversible. Shocks are not transmitted back to the hands of the driver. You need not grip the wheel tightly. A light touch is enough to guide the car safely. Large steering wheel is made of steel, covered with hard rubber. Light switch and horn button are conveniently located on top of wheel.

NEW FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES

The brakes on the new Ford car are an exclusive Ford development. They are of the mechanical, internal expanding-shoe type and are self-centering. This is the most reliable and the simplest type of four-wheel brake and the easiest to adjust. All adjustments are made from the outside without removing any parts. No special tools are needed. Uniform, correct adjustment on each wheel is quickly and easily obtained. The brake pedal and the hand lever each operate all four brakes. Total braking surface is 168 square inches. All brake working parts are cadmium plated to make them rust-proof.

MULTIPLE DRY-DISC CLUTCH

The clutch in the new Ford is of the multiple dry-disc type, which is the most reliable. It is also the easiest to operate, for it takes hold gently and smoothly. It has four driving discs and five driven discs.

COMFORTABLE TRANSVERSE SPRINGS

The springs are of the transverse, semi-elliptic type, designed and built for the new Ford. This type, which was used in the Model T, was adapted to the new car because no better spring type could be found. They are built of the finest spring steel, and the leaves are wide and thin. Each spring is built up of varying sizes and number of leaves to give proper flexibility and to meet riding requirements of the different body types. The size and number of leaves used in these springs is one of the reasons why the new Ford is such a comfortable car. The construction of the transverse springs also contributes to the safety and efficiency of the 4-wheel brakes.

HYDRAULIC SHOCK ABSORBERS

The finest type hydraulic shock absorbers are standard equipment on the new Ford. These combine with the low center of gravity, the minimum unsprung weight, and the easy riding qualities of the transverse springs to make the new Ford one of the most comfortable cars on the road today.

THREE-QUARTERS-FLOATING REAR AXLE

The rear axle of the new Ford is of the three-quarters-floating type. The axle housings are made entirely of steel, built up by welding steel forgings to steel tubing. The differential housing, to which these housings are bolted, is made of rolled channel steel. The axle shafts carry none of the weight of the car, the wheels running on roller bearings on the housing. All bearings in the rear axle are of the roller type. Drive is by spiral bevel gear.

FORD-DESIGNED STEEL-SPOKE WHEELS

Original design and great strength are two features that mark the unique, Ford-designed steel-spoke wheels. Each wheel is assembled by welding, and becomes one piece of metal. Spokes cannot work loose. Each spoke has a tensile strength of 4000 pounds. Outside spokes do not cross, so that the wheels are easy to clean. There are only 30 spokes in each wheel.

BEAUTIFUL NEW LOW BODY LINES

There is a bit of the European touch in the coachwork and contour of the new Ford. Bodies are steel. Fenders are of the full crown type. Appointments and hardware are of a luxurious type seldom found in a low-price car. Upholstery is of rich, durable material. Cushions are deep and easy. Door handles and window lifts are fully nickeled. Speedometer, gasoline gauge, ammeter and ignition lock are mounted on an instrument panel of satin-finish nickel, illuminated by a lamp in center. Headlamps and radiator shell are fully nickeled. Closed cars have the new military-type sun visor and crown roof. Great care has been taken in designing the new Ford to provide generous seat space and ample leg room. Clear, unobstructed vision is assured at front by unusually narrow pillars and at sides by specially designed doors with large windows.

CHOICE OF FOUR COLORS

The color combinations used on the new Ford are especially artistic and attractive. Four color choices are offered for each body type—a most unusual feature in a low-price car. Purchasers may choose any one of the following colors—Niagara Blue, Arabian Sand, Dawn Gray, and Gun Metal Blue. Belt and reveals are finished in contrasting colors, with attractive striping. The finish is pyroxylin lacquer, one of the finest and most enduring finishes for automobile bodies. It is not affected by heat or cold, withstands all kinds of weather conditions, and is not easily marred or scratched. The lustre actually improves with washing.

A QUIET CAR

In designing the new Ford, every precaution was taken to prevent squeaks, rattles and drumming sounds. Body panels and frame sections are welded and riveted together wherever there is possibility of the body weaving. In all structural details the new Ford bodies are built to afford the utmost quietness and comfort.

GREASE GUN LUBRICATION

The chassis of the new Ford is lubricated by the pressure grease gun system, the simplest and most effective method of lubrication.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. W. Harry Brown Celebrates Pittsburgh Homecoming With Reception for 300 Friends

AS A celebration of her homecoming and a gathering together of her old friends, Mrs. W. Harry Brown gave a reception in her Fifth avenue home last night, with about 300 guests attending. Mrs. Brown, as you know, has been spending her winters of late years either in Washington or in London, and has entertained extensively in both cities, but this is her first season in Pittsburgh for some time. She has dropped in occasionally for a few days or even a few weeks, but that is all.

Last night Mrs. Brown received alone in her drawing room, which had been decorated with cibotium ferns and huge urns of yellow chrysanthemums. She wore a gown of rose velvet and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. With her in the drawing room, but not formally receiving with the hostess, were her daughter, Mrs. Charles Albert Painter, Jr., and her son, William H. Brown, Jr., with his wife, the former Elizabeth Reed.

A most distinguished group of out-of-town guests attended the affair. Among them were the Prince and Princess of Thurn and Paxis; Stephen Van Rensselaer, of New York; Former Ambassador Alexander P. Moore, Congressman Stephen G. Porter, Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sill, of East Orange, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, of Plainfield. The other guests were Mrs. Brown's immediate friends, with none of the debutantes present.

There was dancing in the ballroom, which was decorated with the yellow chrysanthemums, and later supper was served in the dining room and the inclosed porch. Bowls of chrysanthemums, pompoms and bouvardia were used as centerpieces for the tables. One lucky-number dance was a feature of the evening, and there were other special dances.

Mrs. Brown, of course, is almost as well known as a hostess in London as she is here. Her parties there were famous, and among her guests have been the Prince of Wales, Princess Beatrice, the Duchess of Norfolk and others.

The charming young Mrs. Francis LeMoyne Page is one of several brides who are receiving much attention. Several parties have already been given for her, the largest, perhaps, being the tea on November 3 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, at which her mother-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin Page, of Colonial place, was hostess. Another just announced is a bridge luncheon which will be given December 14 in the University Club by Mrs. Albert Banks Muse, of Ben Avon. As you will recall, the junior Mrs. Page is a former out-of-town girl, being remembered as Isabel Priestly Lay, of Oil City, before her wedding, September 29.

For 36 years, alumnae of the Ogontz School have held annual luncheon, and now the local association announces that its thirty-seventh is to be held next Monday afternoon in the University Club, to meet Miss Abby Sutherland and the new association members. Mrs. William Thaw, of Morewood place, is in charge of reservations for the luncheon.

You recall, of course, that Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of "Farmhill," Sewickley Heights, bought the John Magee home at Palm Beach last season. She is down there now for the week, seeing that it is put in order for the winter, and will return home next week. Between Christmas and New Year's, Mrs. Rea expects to return to Palm Beach with her daughter, Edith Anne, and they will stay for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. Robert B. Ferree, of Philadelphia, the former Sarah Craig, is spending some time with her mother, Mrs. George Liggett Craig, of Bank street, Sewickley.

It was mentioned yesterday, I believe, that Isabel Gardner, daughter of the Kirtland Cutter Gardners, of Coraopolis Heights, has chosen December 28 as the date for her marriage to John Moore Malone. Isabel is having her two sisters, Mrs. H. Foster Robertson (herself a bride of not so long ago) and Louise Gardner, for her matron and maid of honor. Mr. Robertson is to be best man. The service is to be read at 7 o'clock that evening in the Gardner home.

Several parties are being arranged in honor of the prospective bride, among them being a bridge party December 10, at which Mary Johnson, of Aylesboro avenue, will be hostess; a similar party to be given December 17 by Eleanor Simpson in her home, "Waverly," in Coraopolis Heights; an entertainment to be held that same night by Mildred McKinley, of Thornburg, and a party scheduled for December 16 with Jewel Jarvis as hostess.

The Twentieth Century Club has been decorated with palms, ferns and yellow chrysanthemums for the tea being given there this afternoon by Mrs. Charles J. Nieman, of South Dallas avenue, and her daughters, Mrs. Henry A. Holmes, of Phillips avenue, and Mrs. William A. Duckham, of the Ruskin Apartments. The guests of honor are two recent brides, Mrs. William Archibald Irvin, whom you will remember as Amelia Irene Niemann, and Mrs. Andrew G. Uncapher, the former Mary Jackson. The receiving line will stand before an embankment of ferns and bamboos with two huge standards of bronze chrysanthemums arranged in the ballroom. The tea table in the dining room is decorated with yellow Pernet roses and clusters of hot house grapes.

Mrs. Agnes McFarland, of Graham street, East End, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helen D. McFarland, to John J. Brennan, son of Mrs. Alice Brennan, of Wineteiddle avenue.

After the meeting of Dorcas Chapter No. 401, O. E. S. tomorrow night in the Congress Clubhouse, a bridge and "500" party will be held. Mrs. Louise Smith is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nesbitt, of Alice street, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Nesbitt, to Samuel W. Dougald, of Philadelphia, formerly of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Lula Mosby, of Jackson street, East End, has just returned from a hunting trip in West Virginia with her brothers, Gay Mosby, of Virginia, and Ray Mosby, of Mt. Lebanon, and their wives.

The Young Peoples' Department of the Third United Presbyterian Church, Shady and Northumberland avenues, will give a comedy, "The Charm School," tomorrow night.

A bazar and dinner will be held tomorrow and Friday nights in the Sandusky Street Baptist Church by the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. Frank L. Kelly, Mrs. James A. Magerry, Mrs. Charles E. Hanson and Mrs. Clyde Jobe are in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Johnston, of Coolidge avenue, Mt. Lebanon, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alyce Kathryn Johnston, and John B. Monticello, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Monticello, of Carnegie, which was solemnized last Wednesday in St. Luke's Catholic Church, Carnegie. After December 15, Mr. and Mrs. Monticello will be at home in Royce avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, will hold its annual bazar tomorrow and Friday in the chapel. A musicale will be given tomorrow night, and Friday night a play will be given by one of the classes under the direction of Mrs. Thornton W. Hays.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Forsyth, of Dennistion avenue, have returned home from Forest Hills, Long Island, where they spent Thanksgiving with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Hiller, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Hiller are planning to visit the Forsyths over the Christmas holidays.

"First come first served" will be the rule followed at the dance recital to be given Friday night by the Pittsburgh Athletic Association for the benefit of the victims of the North Side explosion. There will be no reserved seats. Miss Agatha Gillen will be assisted in the program by Leaugeay Stevenson, Emma Kelley, Margaret Loeffler, Margaret Danner, Virginia Bialas, Louise Seedenburg, Vida Jane Hirsch, Peggy Eastell and Jane Van Dyke.

Brilliant Star Chapter No. 402, O. E. S., will hold a card party Friday afternoon in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium. Mrs. Elizabeth Gordon is chairman.

Peter Galvin Briggs, of Hillsdale avenue, Dormont, entertained at bridge in his home Friday night for his sister, Mrs. D. E. Nichol, of Erie. Five tables were in play.

The Woman's Society of the Brushton Methodist Episcopal Church will hold a bazar and chicken noodle supper Friday night in the church rooms, Hale and Kelly streets. Mrs. W. C. Maxwell is in general charge of the affair.

MANY SURPRISES AT MUSICAL CLUB MEETING

The Tuesday Musical Club had all sorts of surprises and unusual features in store for its members yesterday. To begin with, there was the innovation of a buffet luncheon, which, it is hoped, will become a monthly feature. Then, Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling, of Akron, O., made a surprise visit and played an important part in the afternoon's proceedings. Mrs. Seiberling had organized from the various states the chorus of 600 which had sung at the Chicago biennial of the National Federation of Music Clubs and which had been directed by Tuesday Musical's own Charles N. Boyd. With her yesterday Mrs. Seiberling brought a treasure chest of bronze and jade holding a gift of gold from the 600 singers and this she presented to Mr. Boyd, completely overwhelming him. It was particularly appropriate that the gift should have been made on the day that Mr. Boyd was directing the Tuesday Musical's annual choral program.

And a beautiful program it was, too, with Mrs. Marian Clarke Bellinger, piano soloist, playing as she has never played before, and the chorus doing its very proudest. Praetorius, Purcell, Respighi, Foote, Saint-Saens, Rubenstein, Palicot, Delibes and other compositions were given, the Saint-Saens work being "Night," in which Mrs. Letha Frazier Rankin had the solo part and Victor Saudek playing a flute obligato.

At the tea tables, which were centered with yellow pompoms, presided Mrs. W. Paul McCandless, Mrs. P. J. Crolius, Mrs. D. A. Rosser, Mrs. S. E. Clarke, Miss Elsie Guffey, Mrs. George Swan, Mrs. A. B. Longacre and Miss Ida Yagle. Miss Lena Westervelt and her committee had charge of the luncheon and deserve unlimited praise that they served such an excellent meal for so small a price and yet increased the club exchequer. The choral, too, did an extra bit towards the clubhouse fund by conducting a Christmas sale.

Today Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson entertained with a beautifully appointed luncheon in Mrs. Selberling's honor and last night Mrs. W. C. Dierks gave a dinner of 12 covers for her.

The Aspinwall Woman's Club will hold its December meeting at night instead of the afternoon of December 15. William Sterling Battis, dramatic interpreter of Dickens, will entertain the members and their husbands and friends who are to be guests that night. Appropriate music will complete the program. On Friday night the club will celebrate the first birthday anniversary of the club house with a program which is to include a talk by Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph H. Smith and songs by Miss Clara Huhn, accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Henry. Another important event on the month's calendar will be open house on December 22 under the civic department. The freshmen of the high school will give a play and there will be assembly singing, readings by Mrs. D. K. Ballard, music by the club choral, solos by Mrs. Henry Gill and a shower for the Toy Mission. To close the year the house committee has invited all the sons and daughters and young friends of club members to a dance in the club house December 21 from 3 until 6 o'clock.

"Alumni Night" will be celebrated tonight at Fifth Avenue High School with the program including dancing, swimming, numbers by a male quartet, an address of welcome by Dr. Edward Rynearson, a talk by Dr. J. Gordon Ogden and a basketball game between the '29 and the 'teen classes.

Miss Genevieve Quay, Miss Katherine B. Young and Miss Mary Wortman form the committee in charge of the tea which members of Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi will give in Cathedral Mansions Saturday afternoon for their mothers.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church will hold its December meeting in Trinity House tomorrow beginning at 10 o'clock. At the business session the 1928 budget will be discussed and annual reports given. The speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Kirkman G. Finlay, of South Carolina, who will talk of the work among the colored students at the Voorhess School.

Banks Play Santa to Christmas Savers

Millions in Christmas savings are being disbursed by Pittsburgh banks to members of the clubs that have been making weekly deposits during the past year to assure an ample supply of holiday money.

The Union Savings Bank, the pioneer in the formation of Christmas savings clubs in this district, is distributing $775,000, or about the same amount as last year. It has been conducting Yuletide thrift clubs since 1915.

The Dollar Savings Bank, which will send out checks tonight to the members of its first club, will distribute about $55,000. It is giving its regular depositors an unexpected Christmas present of about $200,000 this year in the form of an extra one-half per cent interest on their deposits.

It is estimated that $6,000,000 in Christmas savings will be distributed by the banks of the Pittsburgh district this year.

TUBERCULOSIS STILL MENACE, PUBLIC TOLD

"Tuberculosis, despite the gratifying headway which has been made in the war on the disease, still remains the greatest cause of death of persons between 20 and 45 years of age," said Miss Alice E. Stewart, general superintendent of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh and vice chairman of the Christmas Seal sale now being conducted in Allegheny county, in a radio address last night under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies.

"Tuberculosis prevention takes a major role in any review of community health activities," Miss Stewart said. "In 1904, the National Tuberculosis Association was born. It blazed the trail through the forest of superstitution in the minds of the people—prejudices against fresh air and especially night air, habits of cleanliness, of feeding, of infant and child care.

"Although the results from the campaign against tuberculosis have been very gratifying, much remains to be done before a complete victory over the enemy can be claimed."

THREE ARRESTED IN DRY RAID

Three men were arrested and a quantity of moonshine whisky and beer reported confiscated by prohibition agents who raided a building at 437 Third avenue. William Wright, 37; Valentine Becker, 55, and John Clark, 40, were held in $1,000 bond each. Federal agents also are holding John R. Austin of Mt. Lebanon, who was arrested by Mt. Lebanon police, who say they found liquor in his automobile.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 30.—"Barnyard bunk" was the term "Billy" Sunday, evangelist, applied to companionate marriage here last night en route to his home in Indianapolis. "There are too many good people to countenance it," said he.

LEGION PARTY RAIDED

A noisy party in the club house of McNulty Post, of the American Legion, Steuben and Mill streets, West End, resulted in a police raid on the club early today and the arrest of eight men on disorderly conduct charges. The raid was made after police had received a telephone complaint, according to Lieut. Harry Hatters, who made the raid.

NOTES of the BOXERS

THE card has been completed for the boxing show to be held in McKeesport tomorrow night. Willie Davies and Luis Carpentero the Filipino, meet in the 10-round main bout. Eddie Myers of McKeesport and Manito Perez Valdez, another Filipino, box the semi-final. Bernie Noonan of Jeannette and Joe Todd of Donora are down for the second bout and Bruno Scalla of Donora and Young Jack Dillon will be seen in the opener. The last mentioned pair are light-heavyweights.

An all-heavyweight card of four eight-round battles will make up the show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, with Battling Levinsky, veteran former American light-heavyweight champion, boxing Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City in the main event. Matchmaker Johnny Ray is now at work on the remainder of his card. He went to Youngstown to see Rocco box Jack McAuliffe of Detroit last night.

Lively interest is being shown in the amateur boxing show to be held in the Penn armory, East End, tomorrow night for the benefit of the Homewood Baseball Club of the County League. Seven bouts, in which the cream of the local talent will compete, have been listed.

Freddie Vincent and Johnny Ryan, bantams, box the main bout of a show at Meadville tonight.

Phil Scott, the English heavyweight champion, and Johnny Risko have been matched to box the main bout of a Christmas fund benefit show in Cleveland, December 7.

Andy Tomasky, Wilmerding bantamweight, defeated Jimmy Ireland at Wilmington, Del., last night.

Released from his agreement to box here December 12, Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, has accepted a match with Jimmy Jones at Youngstown on that date. Dundee was to box Young Saylor here, but the latter's defeat by Willie Harmon ruined that match.

Vic Brog, local middleweight, is spending several days in town on his way from Chicago to New York, where he now makes his headquarters. Vic was to box on the same card with Mickey Walker and Paul Berlenbach last Friday night, but the promoters figured he was a bit heavyweight and had a big opponent ready for him and the commission refused to permit the match to go through. Vic has a bout pending in Jersey City at an early date.

SPORTS COMPULSORY IN FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Sports no longer are voluntary in the French Army. They are obligatory.

This winter each regiment is obliged, by ministerial order, to form a soccer team and a Rugby team, and to enter them in competition for the Army championship.

The order also encourages the formation of cross-country teams.

JOHN SEES M'CARTHY FOOLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—The concensus of baseball managers and critics in the Metropolis is that Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, outsmarted himself in trading Sparky Adams and Pete Scott to the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for Kiki Cuyler.

"I think the Pirates got all the better of the deal," said John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants. "Adams is a dangerous ball player, always getting on base, and, with a hard-hitting team like the Pirates behind him, he will bother pitchers more than ever. There is a question whether Cuyler is as good as he used to be. He failed in the pinches many times last season."

"The Pirates seem to have received a lot for nothing." Ed Barrow, general manager of the New York Yankees, said. "They have fortified themselves where they needed help and where a glaring weakness developed in the world series, and they lost no strength because they would not use Cuyler."

George Stallings, former "miracle manager" of the Boston Braves in 1914 and now manager of Montreal in the International League, said:

"I can see one reason why the Cubs made the deal. McCarthy may be looking for added batting strength, with Stephenson, Cuyler and Wilson coming up in a row."

On the other hand, Derby Bill Clymer, manager of Buffalo in the International League, thought Pittsburgh got all the worst of the deal. "They gave him away," he said. "I could have got a ball club for him and players beside."

SPORT COMMENT

Joined the team in 1917. The year was marked by more shifting and changing about in the Buccaneer inner defense than is generally seen in half a dozen campaigns.

At first base alone no fewer than six men were tried. Bill Hinchman started, but did not come up to requirements. Hans Wagner did not report until June and even then did not play regularly, appearing only at intervals at first base until the close of the season, when he retired from organized ball.

Even Ray Miller, the late North Side boy, was tried at the troublesome bag, and in addition the Pittsburgh club bought Bunny Brief from Salt Lake for a tryout, only to turn him over to Louisville after 30 days, purchased George Kelley from the Giants on 10 days' trial during which Kelley proved the biggest bust in years and made a batting average that was unfit for publication, and finally obtained Fred Mollwitz of Kansas City, who stuck for the remainder of the season.

BUT first base was only one of the troublesome spots in the Pittsburgh infield that year, and to give an idea of the extent of the shifting done in the Pirates' first line of defense it need only be stated that even Outfielder Carson Bigbee was tried at second base and shortstop, and that the total number of other players used at the various positions during the year was so high as to include Billy Gleason, Billy Webb, Jake Pitler, Tony Boeckel, Alex McCarthy, Adam Debus, Hooks Warner, Douglas Baird, Archer Riley and Jim Howard.

ON THE subject of "big time" football officials developed in this city and vicinity, H. D. Wenzel writes to express the opinion that Dexter Very, who in his playing days at Penn State was such a great end that Walter Camp picked him for his second All-America team in 1911, ranking him behind only Bomeisler of Yale and White of Princeton. Wenzel points out that Very this year officiated in the Yale-Georgia, Harvard-Penn contests, a Navy contest and a Georgetown game, besides Carnegie Tech-W. & J., Carnegie Tech-Detroit, W. & J.-Bucknell and W. Va. U.-W. & J. battles.

Dan Dougherty might also be mentioned, as he was drawn with John Egan for the Nebraska-N. Y. U. game in Lincoln, Neb. Thanksgiving Day.

MANY SEEK PILOT'S BERTH AT SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—More than a score of applications for the managership of the Syracuse Stars of the International League have been received by Warren Giles, president of the club. Burt Shotton's advancement to the management of the Philadelphia Nationals created the vacancy. Giles said he would make no decision until after the minor league convention in Dallas, Tex., next week.

Billy Southworth, Danny Clark and Pancho Snyder of the St. Louis Cardinals; Patsy Donovan and Spencer Abbot, former International League managers; Mike O'Neill, colorful figure of the old New York State League and Joe Mathes, manager of the Houston (Tex.) Club, are among those being considered.

TOURNEY SITE SET

DETROIT, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—The Baltimore Country Club was awarded the 1928 National Professional Golfers' Association tournament in the annual business meeting of the association here yesterday. The tournament will be played on the Five Farms course. French Lick, Ind., and Fresh Meadow Club of New York City, were the only other bidders.

SOCCER by TOM BIRKS

REPORTS state that the Pittsburgh Celtics are going to protest the game played last Saturday to the cup committee. Apparently Referee Hamilton lost tab on the time and the game was called, then as the clubs climbed that long hill to the Westinghouse High dressing rooms someone found out that six more minutes had to be played, so the referee ordered the clubs back on the field and the game finished.

It seems very evident that Hopkins and Ekewuist will have to develop a foul shooter. One was missed on Saturday and in the much talked of game at Lawrence Park two were missed, when penalties are missed like this it is very apparent that shooting from the 12-yard mark will have to be part of a real practice session. Had either club had a real penalty shooter in the lineup the first game would never have been close.

The writer feels that outside of about three players in the district goal getting is becoming a lost art. Ten years ago the awarding of a penalty kick practically meant a goal. Davy Jones, Frank Hart, Chapple Hancock, Dick Rossini, Jimmie McHenry, Alex King, and Dick McGinn figured the taking of a penalty kick as a gift goal and hardly ever missed. Outside of Buff Donnelli there are few dependable spot kickers in the district, and the kicking of penalties has been forgotten.

One real outstanding game stacks up next Sunday at Castle Shannon when Heidelberg visits the Cooley field in the American League. The Corinthians have been playing to poor crowds this season, but it is figured that the appearance of the national amateur champions will attract the biggest gate of the season. Heidelberg has apparently gotten into the stride that carried it to a national title last season.

The German Sport Club will receive a good test next Sunday when it travels to Mustard Hollow in the American League schedule. The sport aggregation has been setting a good pace of late and look a good possibility for that loop title. Had quite an interesting letter from Carl Weisenberg, popular official of the German club during the week regarding the makeup of leagues to make them better balanced. This letter is going to be the subject of a Sunday column in the near future.

SEVENTEEN WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1927

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

PORTLAND, Ore., is now additionally famous for having been visited recently by the Carnegie Tech football team, but even before that it was noted on the baseball map as having made an uncanny record for turning out great shortstops. In view of that record, fans in general will await with great interest the showing of the latest shortfielder sent to the big show by the club in the Far Northwest.

William Chalmers Cissell is the name of the newest shortstop sent to the major leagues by the Portland club. He has been purchased by the Chicago Americans, and, like about 19 or 20 other youngsters for whom the same claim has been made, he comes up to the fast set as the "highest priced minor league player in the country."

As a general rule you may safely subtract two or three dollars from the published sums said to have been paid for these "highest-priced" recruits, so you can use your own judgment as to the truth of the rumors about Cissell. It is said the total price was $123,000, which, translated from baseball talk into English, means generally about $75,000.

Only part of it is to be paid in cash, the Whitesox agreeing also to turn over Outfielder Ike Boone and Pitcher Bert Cole, besides selling two other players under option next year, to the Portland club.

But to get back to the remarkable record that has almost caused it to become a fixed rule in the major leagues that "if you want a young shortstop who will make the grade, go to Portland."

Just run your eye over the list of seven shortstops who have come to the majors from the Northwestern City: 1906, Bill Sweeney, Boston Nationals; a couple of years later, Ivan Olson was purchased by the Cleveland club, and then, in swift order, Portland sold to big league clubs Roger Peckinpaugh, Dave Bancroft, Chuck Ward and Charley Hollocher. Then a few years back Bill Hunnefield was sold to the Chicago Americans.

From this it will be seen that Cissell is the eighth shortstop to be sold to the majors by Portland in the last 20 years, which is quite a record for one town.

Only once did the Pittsburgh club appear in the purchasing role in the Portland shortstop market, Chuck Ward was the player purchased by the locals, and he was acquired for the 1917 season in exchange for Infielder Paddy Siglin, Outfielder Floyd Farmer and some cash.

Ward was not nearly so successful as some of the other Portland shortfield products, and he lasted only one season here under the managership of Jimmy Callahan and Hugo Bezdek.

Before the 1915 season opened Bezdek swapped him to Brooklyn, along with Pitchers Al Mamaux and Burleigh Grimes for Second Baseman George Cutshaw and Outfielder Casey Stengel.

IT WAS an eventful season for the Pittsburgh infield after Ward

Two Bucs On Star Team

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A 1927 all-star major league team, based on the votes of 168 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, was announced yesterday by the Sporting News, national baseball newspaper published here.

One of the most interesting contests was for second base. Rogers Hornsby of the Giants nosed out Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, for whom he was traded a year ago, by a close margin.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees and Pie Traynor of the Pirates were standouts. Ruth gained the majority of votes for both right and left fields, but was placed in the latter position, giving Paul Waner of the Pirates the right field honors.

Here is the team:

CRACKERS WON'T PLAY POST-SEASON GAME

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Announcement that Georgia University, undefeated member of the Southern Conference, had declined to accept a challnge to play a post-season game with Centenary College, one of the claimants to the Southern Inter-collegiate Athletic Association football championship, was made yesterday by Coach Norton, of Centenary.

Tech Team Back From Far West

THE gridiron warriors of Carnegie Tech, who upheld the football prestige of the East by holding Oregon State to a 14-14 tie at Portland last Saturday, arrived here shortly before 9 a. m. today, bringing to a close the longest trip a Pittsburgh team ever has made for a regularly scheduled game.

The Tartans were loud in the praise of Far West hospitality, scenery and football. Escaping the pain of defeat and free from injuries, the Techites were able to enjoy the jaunt to the full.

Sandlot Football

By TOM BIRKS.

THE poorest schedule since the inception of the sandlot season did not apparently hurt the game any, for the activities of Jupiter Pluvious sure did put a crimp into the activities of the independents over the week-end. The only game staged was the McKeesport Olympics-Carrick Odds battle and the sticky slimy field at Cycler Park presented these outfits from showing their best.

Though the teams battled for four periods nothing was proven and now there is quite an agitation for the fans to watch the same outfits in action again next Saturday. Both clubs feel that they are very much in the race for that Western Pennsylvania championship, and unless a decision is reached then nothing is gained from the meeting. Iverson and Buck Weaver will get together probably this evening and another game arranged for next Saturday at Cycler Park and a wonderful crowd should watch the battle.

Fans who waited at the Bluff last Saturday for the official decision that the game was off left feeling that the clubs had acted in the interests of the game and also the fans. There has been much demand for the game, and it would have been a crime to send the clubs into action before a poor crowd in that sea of mud. Both teams were eager to get into action, but the right thing was done, and with some real football on the Duquesne University grounds should see one of the best elimination battles of the season.

Then another banner attraction is the annual derby scheduled for Parnassus High School field when all the gridiron followers of the Allegheny Valley turn out to watch Burns and Springdale clash. Max Rosskamp watched the McCheseneytown game and still feels that his boys can stop the great aggregation headed by Joe Tobin.

Lawrenceville added another titular honor to its long list last Saturday when the Valley Tigers traveled to the Quarry grounds, East Pittsburgh, and defeated Chalfont Tigers in the final game of the junior lightweight gridiron championships. Lou Conley's aggregation have met and defeated all of the claimants to that title, and won it deservedly on the gridiron.

SIX CLUBS TO START SEASON NEXT WEEK

By JULIUS LEVIN

THE Allegheny County League, last year the strongest basketball circuit operating in this vicinity, was reorganized at a meeting held in Kaufmann's last night, six clubs being granted franchises, namely the Braddock American Legion, McKees Rocks Business Men, McKeesport Cyclers, Duquesne Lafayettes, Goose Goslin Club and the Enoch Rauh Club. The season will open in McKeesport a week from next Saturday night when the Braddock American Legion team meets Lefty Saunders' McKeesport Cyclers on the Y. M. C. A. floor.

It was the original intention of the league sponsors to organize an eight-club circuit, the same as last year, but owing to the dearth of first-class teams and other difficulties encountered in obtaining suitable halls, it was agreed to form a six-club league.

Javor Club of the North Side, Broadway Club of Beechview, Carnegie American Legion and an all-star quintet from the ranks of the Philadelphia Company League were the other applicants for berths, but no action will be taken on them until later in the season.

At the right is an ordinary sized mortal, Bernhard Borgman, sturdy forward and scoring ace of the American League.

LIGHTS and shadows playing on the strange case of Hazen Cuyler constitute one of the most interesting and complex chapters in local baseball history. From an acorn of trouble rose a great oak, whose branches extended in crazy fashion to throw a strange complexion on the local baseball landscape. A tempest in a teapot rose to the proportions of a baseball earthquake. In the whole argument there was little of the absolute, for right and wrong up to a certain point were so fantastically blended that a scientist would have given up in despair in any attempt to analyze the elements of the case, and a philosopher would have grown dizzy in many-sided speculations of the concrete and the abstract interwoven in the curious pattern.

HARVEY BOYLE

Up to the time he was fined Cuyler merited some punishment for quibbling over an unimportant matter. But when Bush at last, somewhat desperate, fined him he fined him not for Cuyler's real offense, quibbling, but for, farcically enough, for one of the things that Cuyler had done right.

STILL, there was no great impasse between the two men, until a

OFFICIAL EXPLAINS DECISION ON PLAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(U.P.)—John C. Schommer, umpire in the Notre Dame-Southern California football game last Saturday, defended himself today against charges of having cost U. S. C. the game through an error.

The charges were made by Capt. Morley Drury, of U. S. C., in a campus speech at Los Angeles last night in which he said the team "had traveled a long distance to be robbed of victory." He later explained he meant "robbed" by the breaks of the game and not by any official.

The controversy centered around a U. S. C. forward pass which Riley of Notre Dame knocked down. There was some question as to whether it was an intercepted or an incomplete pass. The ball went out of bounds behind Notre Dame's goal line.

Schommer ruled the pass was incomplete, not intercepted, and therefore ruled the play a scoreless touchback instead of a safety, which would have given U. S. C. two points and victory.

Schommer's statement follows:

"Riley intercepted the pass in question, reversing in the air, and was facing his goal line when he landed on his feet. He took several steps toward his goal and was struck by several U. S. C. players on about the four-yard line. The ball shot forward, struck between the goal line and the end line and rolled across the end line, where a California player fell on it.

"I overruled cries that Riley was tackled in the end zone and that it was a touchdown, because I was certain Riley had been tackled on the three or four-yard line and it was either a safety or a touchback.

"I called the captains and the field judge for agreement on the

Duke Cage Program Out

By JESS CARVER

CHICK DAVIES, coach of the Duquesne University cage team, made the first cut in the unwieldy squad of some 150 candidates at the second workout of the season yesterday afternoon.

The announcement of the 1927-28 schedule was an added floor feature on the Bluff today.

The season will be opened with the Wittenberg game here December 16, and a week later, Marietta will send its varsity quintet here for a battle with the Dukes. The first Conference engagement will find the Dukes in Greenville for a game with Thiel January 7. The Red and Blue will then take to the road, meeting Bethany, at Bethany on January 10; American U at Washington, D. C., January 18; Catholic U on January 19; Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, Md., January 20.

They'll be home for the St. Francis game on January 22 and will meet Waynesburg two days later and Westminster on the last day of the month.

Two games away, with Geneva on February 2 and Waynesburg on February 7, will follow, and then two big home attractions, against Bucknell on February 10, and American University on February 14. The trip to New York will come next, games being scheduled with City College of New York on February 18 and Manhattan University on February 19.

The Pittsburgh appearance at Bethany and Thiel will take place on February 21 and February 22, respectively, and the season will wind up on the road, at Geneva on March 2 and against Muskingum at New Concord, O., on March 16.

ST. CATHERINES of Beechview sprung one of the biggest surprises of the early season schedule last night when it defeated the Goldensons of the South Side in their first P. & O. League battle, 35 to 32.

Paying strict attention to basketball while their opponents resorted to tactics that made the contest a rough-house affair, the Beechview passers deserved to get the decision over their South Side rivals.

The Goldensons are capable of playing better basketball than that shown last night and unless they change their tactics they are not going to get very far in the P. & O. League race. Monk Ketchell and Clark were the only boys who played any kind of a game for the losers.

When 56 fouls are called, all of them legitimate ones, it is time for the sponsors of the league to take some steps to eliminate roughness such as marked last night's fray.

The contest was a fast one despite the consistent fouling, thanks to the efforts of Leo Mackey, Tri-State official, who handled the contest in a very efficient manner.

ST. CATHERINES, judging by its work against the Goldensons last night, should make a strong bid for the P. & O League championship. The Beechview quintet is a well-balanced one composed of boys who can shoot with deadly accuracy. With a few hard games under their belts last night's winners should be ready to tackle the best in the league with an even chance of victory.

Vincent Burns, elongated center of the St. Catherines team, is a George Ramsay in the making. This boy was opposed by Ketchell, the outstanding center in the P. & O. League, yet he held his rival well in check.

Another promising star is Al Mancuso, former all-scholastic flash at South Hills High School. Mancuso played a whale of a game last night, although somewhat rough at times.

FORMER star athletes at Fifth Avenue High School will hold their annual reunion tonight in the uptown gymnasium. A basketball game between two teams of graduates, one composed of those who played from 1913 to 1920 and the other composed of stars from 1921 to 1926, will be the feature tonight.

Coach Chester E. Briggs, athletic director, has arranged an attractive program of events to bring out the former stars of the Fifth Avenue High School and has made arrangements to accommodate a capacity crowd.

Fifth Avenue High has turned out innumerable scholastic stars in the last 20 years and many of the old favorites of the Red and White are expected to attend tonight's affair.

The North U. P. Juniors, victors over First Presbyterian Church by a 26 to 12 score, are eager to book games at home and abroad. Write the manager, North U. P. Church basketball team.

The Carnegie Steel League will swing into action for the first time tonight when Invoice meets Record at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Two good games are scheduled tonight in the P. & O. League, the Sonermans meeting the Snoops at the Market House, and the Mieles meeting the St. Richards team at Holy Trinity Lyceum.

Crafton and Verona Business clash in the only games scheduled tonight in the Central League. This league promises to surpass the West Penn circuit in interest this winter.

St. Richards club made a deep impression on the followers of the P. & O. League in the opening game of the season and with a fair share of the breaks should finish well up among the leaders.

The Tempest Club, winner of the Heinauer League championship last winter, is back on the floor ready to meet the leading junior and light first-

TUNNEY SERVED WITH PAPERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney, world heavyweight champion, has been served with papers in the suit of Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, Philadelphia sportsman, the New York "American" says today. Hoff claims that under a contract entered into with Tunney and his manager, Billy Gibson, on the even of the marine's first battle with Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia, he is entitled to 20 per cent of Tunney's ring earnings.

Hoff's claims, involving a loan said to amount to $50,000, were made the subject of Dempsey's spectacular "open letter" charges shortly before Tunney's title defense against the former champion in Chicago this fall.

FELSCH IS ACCUSED AS DRY VIOLATOR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A charge of prohibition law violation has been brought by federal agents against Oscar (Happ,) Felsch, one of the Chicago Black Sox expelled from organized baseball following the scandal of 1919.

Arraigned before a federal commissioner, Felsch was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bail.

Federal agents said they found a quantity of beer at a soft drink parlor of which Felsch acquired control three days ago.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

ZEKE WISSINGER, Pitt line coach, was talking with some friends the other day and took time out to hand a boost to Andy Cutler, the Panther center on this year's great eleven.

"I've seen all the Pitt centers since Herb Stein's day, and they include Charley Bowser and Marsh Johnson," Zeke said, "but I'll take Andy any day to round out a good combination. He is the steadiest passer I've ever seen at the pivot position for Pitt and hasn't made a single bad pass all season. Pitt will miss him next season. Accurate passing has a great deal to do with the successful functioning of a backfield, and no one can deny that the Pitt backfield of this year moved with smoothness and precision."

ZEKE then went on to point out the high spots in the play of the various Pitt centers, all of whom gained fame. Stein was a great fighter, but not an accurate passer. Bowser was a great defensive player, with a keen faculty for diagnosing an opponent's plays and making tackles on either side of the line. Johnson always was rarin' to go and sometimes passed inaccurately in his haste to get the ball away and dive into the heat of the play. Cutler is steadiness personified. Much of the Pitt team's success has been due directly to this steadiness, in the opinion of Wissinger.

THE argument over whether Pitt or Yale is the Eastern champion for the 1927 gridiron season continues unabated. Down East they say Pitt's schedule didn't compare with Yale's, or the eligibility code here isn't what it should be, or Pittsburgh isn't in the East, or almost anything else to carry their point for the Elis. Here we naturally cannot see how a team that has been beaten, as Yale was by Georgia, can figure in the championship running against a team that has not been beaten. Personally, I am inclined to the belief that the Pitt team would be a cinch bet to beat the Yale team of this year, playing in its form of the Nebraska and Penn State games. By the same token, it might be argued that the Yale team of late in the season might not have lost to the undefeated Georgia team, which was met

Rangers' Star Leads Ice Scorers

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—The lineup of the New York Rangers, pace-setters in the National Hockey League, boasts the high individual scorer as well as the most penalized of the ice performers, official statistics for games up to November 27 revealed today.

Frank Boucher of the Rangers has a slight margin in the scoring column with five points, compiled from four goals and one assist. Six others are right behind him with four points each—Gagne of the Canadians, Stewart and Dutton of the Montreal Maroons, Finnegan of Ottawa, Hay of Detroit and Bourgeault of the Rangers.

Ching Johnson, sensational defense man of the Rangers, has been handed 23 penalties in five games, Siebert of Montreal, with 17, and Shore of Boston, with 16, are next among those making frequent visits to the penalty box.

early. However, the point is that it is manifestly more unfair to rate the defeated Yale team over Pitt than it is to arbitrarily claim the Eastern title for the undefeated Pitt team over Yale. No one will protest the claim that Yale is the champion of the one-time Big Three, including itself, Harvard and Princeton, but when the dopesters go so far as to toss out a defeat and claim the championship for the Elis in the face of Pitt's cleaner record, that's a little too much to swallow.

WILLIE HARMON'S style of fighting against Young Saylor in handing the latter the first defeat of his career at Motor Square Garden Monday night was nothing new, although it has been a long time since any boxer has displayed such wares so effectively in a bout here. Harmon kept going close and hammering his right to the side of the body, just under the short ribs, and had Saylor grabbing holds to save himself. Saylor's side was so weakened by the concentrated attack in one spot that the muscles acted as if paralyzed and he couldn't use his left as he is accustomed to employ it, and this left is his only attacking weapon, the right being almost useless except for blocking and clinching.

Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion, punches the same way as Harmon, only more so. He sends his right home to the body from a distance, and, after a few rounds, has his opponent's left side so reddened and weakened that the latter can not hold his guard up and falls an easy victim to right swings to the head. There was no disgrace for Saylor in succumbing to such an attack. Considering his lack of major experience he withstood the shock better than many ringsters would have done.

Trophy that accompanies it.

It will mark the first time in history that the W. P. I. A. L. has selected its own champion, the title having been awarded in past years through the medium of a post-season or series of post-season games. As it was the desire of the W. P. I. A. L. to end the season each year on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, so the point scoring system was put into being.

Of the five teams having the chances for the title this year, Clairton, Jeannette, Westinghouse, New Castle and Greensburg, the latter eleven is conceded the best bet. Loucks' fine machine is undefeated and untied, and has decisively turned back the challenges of other strong league teams. Wilkinsburg was defeated 20-0 by Greensburg, which attests to the power of the Westmorelanders.

New Castle and Jeannette both have outside chances to get in the running, and Westinghouse and Clairton may be considered.

third element entered into the situation—the public press, which rightly sensed an absorbing story. It was absorbing because it was important (in sports) and unusual. A second rate player who never has accomplished much and who in this lack of accomplishment mixes ineptness with, say rye and Scotch and a few beers, might be fined and the pressmen would almost fall asleep with announcement of the fine. But let the pressmen hear that a potential hero, a model of virtue as conventionally interpreted, gets an official crack on his dome, and the boys of Fleet street pounce on the story like a cat on a canary.

This third element, beyond the conflict of Cuyler and Bush, the press, must not in a case of this kind consider nicely the consequences to the parties concerned. A greater party than either is concerned—the public—and hence the press leaps to its duty—and somewhat gladly. The outburst from the press over the unusual story was not needed to stir the fans—but fan excitement was reflected in the press excitement, and possibly stimulated.

It was this outburst which really led to the impasse between Cuyler and Bush. Somehow and in error, Bush blamed Cuyler for the skyrockets of lively verbs and exploding adjectives which danced around. Bush resented the hullabaloo, forgetting it was the incident itself and not Cuyler nor no reporter who put the match to the pyre of indignation.

IT IS fair to say this because Bush has said that without the uproar the incident would have remained buried in the secret archives of the club files, with Cuyler coming back into Busherian favor once proper amends were made. But somehow Bush connected Cuyler with the enthusiasm of the reporters who pounced upon the morsel and chewed vigorously until every bit of juice had been extracted—to the delight of the fans. The case then changed from one involving Cuyler's quibbling to one of Cuyler's culpability in inciting a demonstration, a case which no one, versed in what interests the public, needed.

NOW majority opinion is not always a gauge to go by. In fact it is the lament of the intellectuals that only a small minority, trying to lead and reform the majority, has the right slant on life and its muddling intricacies. But majority opinion, guided either by instinct or by a size-up of the cold facts, plainly was on the side of Cuyler when the opposition itself owned a strong case in that Bush, after all, was winning a pennant.

PACT WITH MICHIGAN DENIED BY HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 30.—Harvard may play Michigan in 1929, but so far the university authorities have not even considered the possibility or that of the home-and-home agreement which reports from New York City have declared was all but signed.

William J. Bingham, director of athletics for Harvard, made that announcement today.

"We have done nothing definite about the playing list for 1929," Mr. Bingham said. "The matter of the schedule for that year has not come up between Coach Horween and myself."

Tribe Bids For Pilot

By DAVIS J. WALSH, International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Cleveland, far from having abandoned the project, has renewed its attempt to wean Stanley Harris away from Washington as its player-manager for 1928, even to the extent of informing Clark Griffith that he may write his own ticket on the player exchange. This information came to hand today from a most intimate source, as did the further statement that Harris had gone to Griffth to ask for the transfer to Cleveland, providing it could be equally arranged.

Alva Bradley, newly installed head of the Indians, was in New York today, but his visit, I am informed, had no bearing on the Harris matter. The latter, in fact, is understood to have come to a head, not through Bradley, but as a result of the election of Billy Evans, American League umpire, as vice president and business manager of the club.

Evans, now the active charge d'affaires in Cleveland, at a salary of $35,000 a year plus 5 per cent of the receipts, has made no secret of his admiration for Harris' managerial ability. Given his choice of the 15 managers now operating in the major leagues, it is understood that Evans would name Harris without a second look.

However, there is something about the project which everyone has forgotten, with the possible exception of Griffith. If he traded Harris today, he not only would be without a second baseman but also a first class manager. And they don't grow that kind seven days in every week.

facts. Notre Dame's captain dissented and this I overruled.

"When Riley caught the ball he was facing his goal and I could not see the ball. If Notre Dame had possession and control of the ball, then Riley gave the impetus that sent it across the goal line (This would have made it a safety). If he did not have possession and control then it was a touchback.

"I asked the field judge who was facing the play and he said 'not possession and control.' I then gave the ruling of touchback."

TEMPERS DECLARATION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 30.—(UP.)—Capt. Morley Drury today slightly tempered his declaration that the University of Southern California had been "robbed" of a football victory over Notre Dame last Saturday at Chicago.

"I had no intention of questioning the integrity of any official," Drury said today. "I merely wanted to point out that a terrible mistake had robbed of us a well-earned victory.

"I guess, though, that a decision like that is a 'break' in the game."

At a campus meeting following return of the team from Chicago last night, Drury assured the Students U. S. C. would go into the University of Washington game Saturday determined to win.

Seemingly about to end his remarks, Drury burst out with:

"After all is said and done, we feel that we traveled a long distance to be robbed of a victory."

Coach Howard Jones, who followed Drury, said he believed the officials had erred in a ruling which held Riley of Notre Dame had blocked but not intercepted a U. C. C. forward pass which was later recovered by a Trojan behind the Irish goal line. Had the officials held the pass intercepted, the play would have been scored as a safety, giving U. S. C. two points and an 8-7 victory.

Jess Hibbs, tackle, added that "Chicago treated us fine and Notre Dame is a great team."

OPINIONS VARY

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(INS.)—Here is what some Midwestern critics think of the disputed football play in the Southern California-Notre Dame game here Saturday. Their opinions were collected after Capt. Morley Drury of the Trojans is reported to have charged that his team was "robbed" by an unfair decision.

KNUTE ROCKNE, coach of Notre Dame—I have always taken the official's decision as final, but Coach Jones and Capt. Drury of the Southern California team are entitled to their opinions.

MAJ. JOHN L. GRIFFITH, Big Ten athletic commissioner—The ruling that the play was a touchback is correct, in my opinion. It is a delicate situation, but I am certain that the verdict was correctly given under the conditions. Riley could not have gained control of the ball or it probably would not have been knocked from his hands.

MAYOR WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON of Chicago, a former football star—The officials were correct in their judgment.

J. LOUIS COMISKEY, White Sox official—The officials were correct in their ruling, in my opinion, it was just what they called it—a touchback.

ED KNOX, former Yale athlete—I believe Southern California's claims are valid. Riley did have momentary possession of the ball and the play should have been ruled a safety and not a touchback.

EDWARD J. KELLY, president of the South Park board—From where I sat, it looked like a touchback.

in the American defense, only to lose the disc or to see their shots being stopped by the spectacular work of Joe Miller, the one-time Pittsburgh goalie.

However, last night's setback is history and Manager Cleghorn will put his squad through a long workout this afternoon to get his skaters on edge for another gruelling battle tomorrow night when the Boston Bruins will be met on the Duquesne Garden ice.

The Pirates' two forward lines appear not to be functioning properly and it wouldn't be surprising to see some sort of a shift for the Boston tilt. Sam Rothschild, who, reports of last night's game show, was the outstanding performer for the local team, likely will be put on the starting line, with Milks or Arbour dropped back to the secondary line. The lineup and summary of the Pirates-American game last night:

Americans—1.		Pirates—0.
Miller	G	Worters
Conacher	D	Langlois
Simpson	D	Smith
Himes	C	Milks
McKinnon	W	Darragh
B. Green	W	Arbour

Spares—Americans, Bouchard, Reise, Burry, Bewcher, Boucher and Burch; Pirates, McCurry, Drury, White, Rothschild and McKinnon.

Scoring—Second period, Conacher, 5:42. Penalties—Himes, Conacher 2, White 2, (2 minutes extra for talking back to referee), Boucher, McCurry, Al McKinnon 3, Green, Langlois and Drury.

Referee—Cooper Smeaton.

PINCHOT-VARE FIRE GUNS IN SENATE CONTEST

ISSUE CARRIED TO NATIONAL G. O. P. BODY

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—Preparatory to the opening of Congress next week, former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, today had let loose another caustic blast against the seating of Senator-elect William S. Vare, while the latter, in a formal statement, defended himself against the charges of corruption filed and expressed full confidence in the intention of the Senate to recognize his credentials.

The statements from the former Pennsylvania executive and Mr. Vare, released here simultaneously, may be described as the opening guns of the battle that is to take place on the floor of the upper chamber over the contested election cases immediately after Congress convenes Monday.

Pinchot, in his statement, was more vigorous in his demands that Vare be denied a seat than ever before. He reiterated everything he has said in the past about Vare's election being "partly bought and partly stolen," and added a lot more besides.

Setting forth the principle that the "right of a state to representation is fundamental," the Pennsylvania senator-elect declared that he had never been able to picture the United States Senate invading that right because of "political expediency." "Nor do I anticipate such a procedure," he said.

SENDS OPEN LETTER

The Pinchot statement came in the form of an open letter to the Republican National Committee, which meets here next week for the purpose of selecting a site for the 1928 Republican national convention. Up to now the national committee meeting had been regarded as a tame affair, with no greater question to be decided than the friendly rivalry between the several contending cities as to which would land the convention.

In consequence of the demand by the former Keystone State executive, however, that the committee take a hand in the Vare controversy, a highly disturbing element has been injected. It is as though Pinchot had dropped a foundling or a white elephant into the lap of the committee, asking them at the same time what they intended to do about it.

"As members of the Republican National Committee," the former Governor said, "you are about to assemble in Washington to consider matters affecting the honor and welfare of the party and its success in the coming campaign. One matter which will affect it profoundly is the question whether the Republican party in the United States Senate will seat William S. Vare and thus condone and encourage corruption of the ballot, or whether it will condemn and rebuke it.

"I realize that the direct responsibility in this matter rests upon the Senate of the United States. But I am convinced that the weight of your great influence in deciding a question of such paramount importance may well be decisive. I appeal to you, therefore, to recall both to yourselves and to the leaders of the party in the Senate that as righteousness exalteth a nation, so trafficking with evil condemns a party.

"I address you now upon this question because of my official knowledge of it as a former Republican governor. And also because as a member of the Republican party I am keenly anxious that my party shall not lay itself open to the charge of having winked at or profited from a bought-and-stolen election.

"The fraudulent character of Mr. Vare's nomination and election is neither accidental nor exceptional. This is not an isolated case. Purchase and theft are normal in elections under the Vare machine, and premeditated murder for political purposes is not unknown.

"The fraud from which Mr. Vare seeks to profit has not ceased, even in the face of the Senate committee investigation. At the primary in Philadelphia last September there was less stealing than usual because of the fear of certain election laws, but that fear speedily wore off, and, at the November election the Vare machine, unrepentant and unashamed, returned to its regular practices. Not even the jeopardy of the leader could change its long-established habit.

"The American people are convinced, and rightly convinced, that Mr. Vare is guilty, and well assured that the purchase and theft of his seat ought not to be ratified by the Senate of the United States. In this conviction and assurance the decent people of Pennsylvania emphatically join.

"If Vare is seated the American people will adjudge the Republican party guilty of conniving at the purchase and theft of an election and of doing so for its own political benefit."

VARE STATEMENT

Senator-elect Vare said in his statement:

"I come to Washington with the absolute expectation of taking the seat in the Senate to which the people of the state of Pennsylvania elected me.

"The right of a state to representation is fundamental. Our whole national life began on this issue. I have never been able to picture the United States Senate invading that right because of political expediency. Nor do I now anticipate such a procedure.

"My confidence, therefore, is natural. I welcome the minutest scrutiny of the primary and the election in Pennsylvania, because such scrutiny will determine beyond question the legality and the propriety of every expenditure made by the campaign committee.

We followed the letter of the general election law even in the primaries, where it does not legally apply, and we followed the spirit of it in both campaigns. My personal expenditures for the Vare-Beidleman-James-Woodward campaign went entirely for letters direct to the voters. Our total fund, which was less than one-fourth the amount expended by the three competing tickets in the primary, was not used solely or principally in the successful effort to secure my nomination to the Senate. It covered several thousand candidacies, including those for governor and lieutenant-governor.

"There is a greater issue involved here than any man's personal record, gladly willing as I am to have mine examined. The state of Pennsylvania, second largest commonwealth in point of population in our federal community of states, sends to the Senate one of the two members of the upper branch of Congress to which the Constitution entitled it. The constitutional privilege was a major consideration in the original compact which brought Pennsylvania into the Union. By her own consent she is entitled to no more representation in the Senate than her less populous neighbors like Arizona and Alabama, but she is clearly entitled to that.

"Every issue of the campaign has been decided by the voters of Pennsylvania. Every process of law has been met. Every requirement of the Constitution has been fulfilled. The Senate has the right to seek for fraud. It will find none. In the absence of that fraud, to bar one of Pennsylvania's Senators from taking his oath of office and performing his constitutional duties would be the worst blow at representative government since the legislative machinery was first set in motion. I do not believe it will happen."

ROBBERS RAID TAILOR SHOP

Six suits valued at $200 were stolen early today from the Shadyside Tailoring Shop at 234 Shady avenue by two young men who broke a window with a padded brick. An automobile used by the robbers was found abandoned in Kingston place a short time later. Two of the suits were found in the machine. The robbers escaped.

DEFER SENTENCE IN AUTO THEFT

Disposition was deferred in the case of John Adams, 26, of Wall, indicted as George Allen, who yesterday was found guilty in connection with the theft of an automobile owned by J. R. Dodworth, of North avenue. Adams is said to have been in court in 1921 on charges of larceny and false pretense, and to have been pardoned last July from the penitentiary where he was serving time on other charges. He was arrested last month downtown when Dodworth saw him driving the machine and leaped to the running board.

"Electricity!—
The New Helper on the Farm"

Says William M. Jardine
Secretary of Agriculture

"Electricity has already made important contributions both to labor saving on the farm and to a more modern, satisfying rural life. I am confident it is going to make further contributions of equal or greater importance."♦

WHAT cheap and abundant electric power has done for the industrial worker and his family in the alleviation of drudgery and the betterment of living and economic conditions, it now promises to do for the farmer.

Through the activities of the Committee on Rural Electrification, with the cooperation of electric power companies, farm electrification is a fact today in twenty-three states.

One hundred and forty practical applications of electricity to the farm have already been developed. As a result of the cooperation between farmers and the power companies there has been an increase of approximately eighty-three percent in the number of farms using electricity in the last three years.

In simplifying the labor problem on the farm; lightening the load of physical toil; and increasing the comfort, convenience and cheer of the farm home, this extension of electric facilities to rural communities is rendering a social and economic service of utmost national importance.

To insure the continued extension of farm service, it is essential that the American principle of individual initiative, by means of which these advantages have been made possible, should be encouraged and maintained.

Ann Discovers That Georgie Has Again Met Ernest Brooks on the Sly

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together at Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a factory, and Georgie in an insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manners. She thinks it would be a good thing if Georgie married Bill Warren, who has no money, but who is madly in love with Georgie. Bill shows Ann the engagement ring he has bought for Georgie. A strange young man drives Georgie home in a smart car, and Ann hears her planning to meet him the next day. She pleads with her sister not to make chance acquaintances and speaks enthusiastically about Bill Warren. The same evening Georgie refuses Bill's offer of marriage. Ann is furious when she hears about it. Georgie resents being bossed and Ann wonders how she could best safeguard her sister. Ann goes to a party with Jimmy McCormick, a department head in the factory, and incurs a jealous girl's enmity. She gets a shock when she looks across the dance floor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

IN THAT booth there were two people, a sleek-haired man in his early thirties, well dressed, good looking in a hard way, and a girl, young, pretty, laughing, with one silken leg crossed over the other, and her wide eyes dancing with excitement and pleasure.

The girl was Georgie! The man was that same man who had picked her up, brought her home to Mrs. O'Leary's the other evening in his roadster!

For a moment Ann's mind was confused by many thoughts and emotions. First she remembered how Georgie had pleadingly begged her not to scold her, and how she had ended by promising on her solemn word not to pick up any more strangers, nor see this particular one again.

That promise, made with tearful sincerity, had lasted about three days. And tonight she had lied out of going with Jimmy and Rob and Ann, knowing all the time she was going to meet this man she was now with.

Like Ellen she had pretended a headache. But Ann was cut to the core by Georgie's deceit. She wouldn't have lied to Georgie herself for anything in the world, but Georgie hadn't scrupled to deceive her.

She wanted to march over to that booth, to confront Georgie, but the folly of such a course stopped her. She was angry and hurt.

If only Georgie had come to her, had told her that she really liked the man she was with, wanted to see him again, it would have been all right. But to meet him on the sly, to try to cheat like this—that was what was so unfair.

And the very fact she had said nothing about him made Ann more sure than ever that Georgie felt guilty in her own mind, and knew that Ann would never approve of her escort.

Ann was recalled from her thoughts by Rob Jerome's voice:

"What's the matter, little one? Dreaming about something or someone? You're not crazy about right away and go home and cry!"

It was hard to talk to him in his own vein when her mind was full of other things, and Ann felt she was proving dull company.

But he only looked at her with a quizzical grin:

"Well you're yourself, anyway, aren't you?" he said. "And don't mind me for being so flip. I really like you. . . . Let's dance."

The floor had gradually grown more crowded. Ann's eyes roved over the crowd. Georgie and her friend were no longer in their booth. Had she seen Ann herself and hurriedly departed, hoping she hadn't been noticed? Or was she among the dancers?

Then all at once Ann saw her, her head thrown back, her eyes half closed, the man with her smiling and looking down at her. She was like something delicate and fragile. No wonder men were crazy about her.

For a moment Ann doubted herself, wondered after all why she had the right to interfere with Georgie's flirtations. Surely, they were her own business. And yet glancing from Georgie's pert and innocent face to the hard eyes of the man with her, she felt justified more than ever.

For his was a face that told its history, a history of unscrupulous pleasure. He wouldn't be content with a few kisses, he would deliberately stalk a girl that interested him, and somehow manage always to keep his own head.

And Ann knew now that no matter what happened she must try to take care of Georgie. Georgie's danger lay in the very fact of her overwhelming belief that she could manage herself in any situation.

The dance went on, and at last Ann's opportunity came. She was close to Georgie, and as the latter turned, she called her name.

Georgie's eyes widened. She flushed guiltily, and her mouth curved into a sudden line of defiance. But there was no anger or reproach to be read in Ann's face, for she had deliberately schooled herself. Unless she used her head, she could do nothing.

"See you later, Georgie," Ann called, and turned her head away, as if nothing at all had happened.

But Rob Jerome whispered in her ear: "Who's the baby-doll?"

"My sister."

"Good Lord, do they grow like that in your family? First you and then her. Got any others?"

"No."

"Then I'll have to get along with only the two of you."

When the dance was over, Ann said:

"Come on over, and I'll introduce you. I didn't know Georgie was going to be here."

"Yeh, thought you said she had one of those headaches when you called up Jimmy. Wish someone would have a headache over me for a change!"

Ann was smiling in a friendly way when she arrived at the booth where Georgie was sitting. Georgie said quickly:

"Mr. Brooks—this is my sister."

The man with Georgie rose and bowed. His cool eyes measured Ann.

"Think I've seen you before."

"Yes, the other day when you drove Georgie home."

"Oh." He was very polite, but his eyes were as intuitive as a woman's, and Ann guessed he had already read the hostility in her own spirit.

Meanwhile Rob Jerome was busily trying the effect of his line on Georgie, and she was giggling. Ann guessed he must find her a thousand times more congenial than herself. She could throw the ball back to him just as fast as he threw it at her.

Brooks beckoned a waiter and ordered ginger ale. He did not look particularly pleased at seeing his party augmented, and his eyes, traveling over Rob Jerome's rather flashy, cheap clothes, seemed to betray a certain contempt.

Nevertheless he took a large silver flask from his pocket when the ginger ale arrived, and offered a silent invitation.

"Believe you me!" Rob exclaimed. "That's just what I need!"

Ann shook her own head to Brooks' invitation. She saw him proffer it to Georgie.

"No thanks, Ernest," she said, but at that moment she caught Ann's eyes on her face, and a sudden fit of perversity seemed to seize her.

"Oh yes, guess I will," she rapidly said. "Just a drop."

The drop was a generous one, Ann noticed. She saw Georgie's spoiled, defiant little face turned from her, saw her lift the glass with a laugh.

Ann's pulses were hammering. She felt so angry and upset now that it was hard to control herself. And yet if she didn't keep a firm hand on her emotions, she would be helpless. The music had struck up. She caught Ernest Brooks' eye.

He nodded, realizing her challenge and accepting it.

"Will you dance this one with me?"

She knew he was clever as well as unscrupulous. And she knew Georgie's eyes were on her back as she moved out to the polished floor.

CHAPTER IX.

ERNEST BROOKS danced well, too, not as well as Rob Jerome perhaps, but in an easy graceful way. And as he danced, his eyes, with their ironic smile, never left Ann's face. He knew well enough she had wanted to speak to him alone, but he was giving her no help.

She said at last with a bluntness that astonished her.

"Do you mind if I ask you some questions?"

"Go as far as you like."

"Well, are you—are you in love with my sister?"

His eyebrows went up. He looked contemptuous and amused.

"Of course, I must be."

"I mean," Ann went on doggedly, with a sickening feeling that she was getting nowhere and only making a fool of herself, "I mean are you . . . anxious to marry her?"

"Marry her? Aren't you rushing things a bit? Besides what has marrying her got to do with being in love with her?"

"Because that's what I mean by being in love, really in love, with her."

His lip curled a little. "Possibly your sister has different ideas."

It was hard to talk, to think clearly, to fence with this man, against the music, the swaying figures, the carefree crowd on the floor.

"Don't let's dance the rest of

Toy Mission Volunteers Aiding Santa

TOY MISSION WORKERS SPEED PRODUCTION

A. C. Houston, chief of volunteer repairmen, who directs pleasant work fixing playthings for children of poor families in Pittsburgh, says mechanical toys cannot be repaired if important parts are missing.

Toy Mission Becomes Santa's Workshop

In a big room in the Old South School Building, Ross and Diamond streets, is Pittsburgh's largest and busiest toy shop. Here the Toy Mission repairs and repaints toys donated by its friends, and when the playthings have been put into first-class shape they are distributed among the children in the poorer families of the city.

The Old South School toy shop is the source of more happiness on Christmas morning than any of the new-toy depots which supply boys and girls in well-to-do homes.

To keep a constant supply for the cheerful workers at the toy shop The Sun-Tele Toy Mission Auxiliary was established and donations are solicited from all persons who are interested in Pittsburgh's chief holiday-giving institution. People in all parts of the city and suburbs are searching their attics and basements and hundreds of toys are now being sent to the auxiliary stations where they will be collected and delivered to the mission workshop.

A. C. Houston, who, for years, has had charge of the repair work of the mission, has resumed his activities and will have a large corps of assistants. Mr. Houston and his helpers give their time in their labor of love and with expert skill fashion at-

LORD KENYON, LARGE LAND OWNER, KING'S AIDE, DIES

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Lord Kenyon, one of England's large land owners, and aide de camp to King George, died yesterday at the age of 63.

'CAT' BURGLAR SPREADS TERROR IN WASHINGTON

RICH ARM AGAINST PHANTOM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—A burglar whose feline tread and frequent escapes have brought him the newspaper cognomen of the "cat" has fashionable northwest Washington on the qui vive.

Ten days ago he began jimmying locks and prowling about bedrooms; now his career is an endurance contest, with the frazzled nerves of past and prospective victims barely holding their own against his ability to remain uncaptured.

Whether the Cat is one person with the proverbial multiple lives or several burglars with the formal number, bent on cashing in on the cat's publicity campaign, is not of record. Neither does that concern the northwest neighborhood; it is interested only in the cat's or cats' extermination.

Equipped with the traditional tools of the trade, pistol and flashlight, the cat has probed dresser drawers, pants pockets and other treasure troves, nearly always with a profit. Once he had to cover his retreat with a shot and another time he tarried to listen to a sermon from a minister "victim" who talked him out of the spells.

Residents of Cleveland Park, the cat's prowling ground, have formed posses in vain, have hired private detectives to assist the police and are leaving lots of lights burning in their homes at night. One citizen has put up a flood light on the roof, aimed at his back yard.

One of the posse pounced upon a suspicious looking individual whose momentary fright rendered him speechless. He turned out to be the president of one of the city's largest trade organizations who was then hurrying to join the hunt.

Passing of at least one of the cat's lives was hoped for when a banker fired three shots at a lurking figure near his home, drawing a scream from the target. The cat robbed another house the next night, however, by way of denying the report of his death.

CUSTOMERS—BUT HOW

MRS. ALMA NELSON ANNA FAULKNER

They met in Morals Court and might well have exchanged reminiscences. Miss Anna could have told of how the mean and nasty police informed "the judge" that she had a bad habit of picking up little things in department stores. And Mrs. Alma might have related that the same police told of how she had left little things in the department stores. The "little things" happened to be bouncing checks, according to police.

Juvenile Court 'Broke,' Blame Coal Strike

The coal strike in the Pittsburgh field is playing havoc with the budget of Juvenile Court, the County Commissioners were told today by Judge Richard Kennedy, County Court, and Miss Grace L. Stokes, chief probation officer of Juvenile Court, when they requested an additional $75,721 to pay outstanding obligations. The Commissioners granted the request.

Judge Kennedy informed the commissioners that the court had no money left to pay for the boarding of Juvenile Court charges. The judge said that no money has been paid to persons boarding boys and girls placed by Juvenile Court since October. He said that the people wanted their money, but it could not be paid unless the commissioners came to their rescue.

Miss Stokes said that the coal strike was responsible for the shortage in the court's funds. Between 75 and 100 cases pass through Juvenile Court each week, Miss Stokes said. Families of coal miners are up against it and cannot support their children and the burden of maintaining the children falls on Juvenile Court. The commissioners immediately relieved the condition by authorizing the money needed transferred to the Juvenile Court fund.

CONVICT DEATH DRIVER IN RUSH

A jury in Criminal Court took 15 minutes today to find guilty of involuntary manslaughter, John Bozar, 25, of Buena Vista, whose auto killed a boy in McKeesport February 17.

Ackland, H. Merry, 12, 405 Patterson avenue, McKeesport, was riding a wagon on the sidewalk near his home when Bozar's car, according to testimony, ran 100 feet along the sidewalk before hitting the lad.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 30.—The head of the Democratic ticket is just about set, outside the machine, so I want to start early with my vice-presidential nomination. It's Dan Moody, the governor of this little province.

WILL ROGERS

Now Dan, this is not just what I would like to offer you, but it may lead to something worthwhile. To any guy that can run Texas, America ought to be a pipe.

The newspapers have dug up another sensational murder trial, man and woman and dead husband. Watch the sales double.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

BARES ROMANCE

MR. AND MRS. E. HALDEMAN-JULIUS

That Josephine Haldeman-Julius, whose companionate marriage to Aubrey C. Roselle excited nation-wide comment, is his own daughter and was born six years before his marriage to Miss Haldeman was the startling disclosure made today by E. Haldeman-Julius. The general belief had been that Josephine was adopted. Haldeman-Julius reviewed his romance which began 20 years ago while his wife was still a student at Bryn Mawr college. Economic reasons, he said, delayed the marriage. The publisher announced that he would rewed his wife at a ceremony similar to that of his daughter.

If ------ Two sisters love the same man?

Ann Discovers That Georgie Has Again Met Ernest Brooks on the Sly

this," Ann said. "I—I want to get things quite clear."

They stood close to a wall. Was Georgie watching? Probably. And watching with suspicion and anger Ann's talk with this man, wondering what she was saying.

What she was saying was this!

"You see, Georgie and I are absolutely alone in the world. And I am older than she is, and I've always looked out for her, taken care of her. She doesn't know anything, and she's reckless and foolish, and worst of all, sure of herself. I—I have to look out for her as if she were my child, not my sister.

"Don't you see? I'm telling you the truth as simply as I can. I'm pleading with you—really. If you give her things to drink, it's just criminal. I don't want to be rude, but I do know that your friendship with Georgie can do nothing but harm."

She had finished, and Ernest Brooks puckered his mouth in a silent whistle. He did not seem to relish her simplicity and honesty, however. There was a little ugly sneer on his face.

"Just what do you think you're going to do about it?" he demanded.

"Y... an you won't even ...e?"

...e. I won't listen to ... about a million years ... imes. Good Lord, this isn't the Way-Down-East era! What right have you to try to butt in, anyway? I wouldn't be surprised if you were jealous because your sister's better looking than you are!"

Then Ann grew pale. He had matched her frankness with a frankness of his own, and he had been brutal. She knew now she feared this man, and she felt unable to say another word.

She turned and made her way back to the booth, with Ernest Brooks just behind her, plainly the victor. She had no desire except to get away, to go where she could be alone. She must think things out with a clear head somehow. Brooks had all but told her of his intention, and Georgie was weak enough and helpless enough to follow her own headstrong way to unhappiness.

Though Reb Jerome was laughing, Georgie's eyes, big with intensity, explored Ann's face as she approached. But they fell before Ann's smoldering stare, and even Roy seemed to realize something had happened.

The dance had not yet ended. Brooks smiled at Georgie, and as if to break the tension, she rose and swirled away in his arms.

"Take me home. I want to go home," Ann pleaded to Reb.

"What's the matter?" Reb asked. "That guy didn't say anything to you, did he? I'd like to hand him one just for luck—he certainly hates himself, he does!"

"No, nothing's happened. Only I'm tired. You don't mind, do you . . . some other night . . ."

He followed here, disappointed but unresisting, to the main entrance. But once they were in the dark hall, he caught her arm.

"Look here," he said, "I'm sorry if anything's happened. Sure, I am!" Then he put his arms clumsily around her and tried to draw her close to him.

"Oh, please don't!"

"What's the matter? A kiss isn't going to hurt you, is it?"

And before she could stop him he had kissed her, held her closely to him for a moment. As he released her, Ann glanced ashamed up the corridor. At the entrance of the hall, just where it turned, Georgie was standing. Evidently she had come out to say something to Ann.

She had seen Reb's kiss. Now with a shrug, she turned on her heel and went back. A shadowy figure joined her. They disappeared together into the ballroom.

Then Ann laughed, but with bitterness. To be caught like that somehow spoiled the point of anything she herself might say. It would make her arguments as weak as that of the reformer who says it is all right for him to indulge himself as he wishes, and all wrong for others.

Going home in the taxi, she was silent so that Reb Jerome's facile sympathy turned to sulkiness. At the door of Mrs. Leary's he gave a curt goodnight, and did not attempt to kiss her again.

Except for the dim light in the lower hallway, the boarding-house was dark. Ann climbed the stairs to her own room. She felt miserable and lonely. She wished with a wish that was like pain that her mother were living and that she could go to her with her worries and her responsibilities.

Her first fury had burned out. Now she only wanted to bring Georgie to her senses, to make her see the danger she was running in making friends with men like Ernest Brooks. He had practically admitted that he was unscrupulous. He was clever and knew women. He was cruel and he was attractive.

If ever Georgie should fall under the spell of his fascination—and that he was fascinating, Ann could not deny—there was no telling what might happen to her.

With her love of pleasure, her recklessness, her ability to be swept away utterly by a single mood, she was in danger. Ann sat in the dingy room, in the loneliness and the silence, trying to think what to do.

No use ordering Georgie. Perversely, she might defy any such attitude. And as for pleading with her, that seemed so hopeless. She had promised fervently enough and in all sincerity, but her promise had not lasted three days.

Sitting there, waiting for Georgie to return, worrying to no avail, Ann reflected once more that for Georgie there was really only one sensible course.

She must marry Bill Warren. With his boyishness, his youth, he would have so much to offer. And he would be firm with her, too. Ann sensed that strength of will in him.

She thought of him now with a little wave of tenderness. How could Georgie be so blind as to be caught up by the various Ernest Brooks of the world, with their cheapness, their empty bitterness, and let Bill Warren go by?

She must marry Bill Warren, she must, she must! The words went on in Ann's head like a refain. Suddenly she heard the door below snap open. She got up. But it was only one of the other boarders who had been out late. It was almost an hour before the door was opened once more. And this time she knew the step on the stairs was Georgie's!

CHAPTER X.

WHEN Georgie opened the door, her face was unusually flushed. Ann wondered whether she had more than one "little drop" out of Ernest Brooks' big silver flask.

Her heart sank at the thought, but she was relieved to see that Georgie was perfectly composed. Probably the drink she had taken out of defiance to Ann's warning look was the only one she had had.

Protectively Georgie's face had taken on an almost sullen expression. She began to pull her things off, scattering them everywhere, after her fashion.

"Didn't think you'd still be up," she said, aggressively. "Weren't waiting for me, were you?"

"Of course I was. You know that, Georgie."

The younger sister gave a quick little laugh, full of harsh overtones.

"Well, please don't lecture me tonight! I know what you think, only I think differently, that's all."

Ann put her arm around Georgie's shoulders, but as if fearing affection would weaken her stand, Georgie drew away abruptly.

"Do you like that man?" Ann asked suddenly.

"What man?"

"The man you were with tonight. Ernest Brooks."

"Oh, you make me tired!" Georgie flung out erossly. "You want to make everybody exactly like you, and if they're not, you go around shaking your head and sighing. You ought to have been a missionary!"

Serious as she felt at heart, Ann could not help smiling at Georgie's naive petulance.

"Well, I can't help that, can I?" she asked mildly. "But you haven't answered my question."

"Well, how can I answer it? Of course I like him. But I like lots of other people. That's the way I am."

"Listen, Georgie, call me anything you want, but don't go out with that man any more! Honestly, don't do it!"

To Be Continued.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer' — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm a WRECK! I'm HONestly PRAYED down to my WARP and WOOF at this point, no less, because I practically never have a MINute when I am not all-of-a-DOOdah about this odd soul ARab, because, my dear, he is conTINually in TROUBLE about SOMEthing—you know the type! I mean I HONestly think it's simply TRAgic for a boy to be so sort of dePENDent on a GIRL as ARab is on ME, my dear, don't you really think it IS? Because, after ALL, my dear, it is a GIRL'S place to be the dePENDent one, sort of, but b'lieve ME I know ARab well enough so that I would certainly never be idIOTic enough to dePEND on him for anything but bad NEWS. But I REALLY think he ought to sort of buck UP and CULtivate some self-reliance or something, my dear, because WHAT will beCOME of him eVENtually? I mean I certainly have no inTENtion of looking AFter him for EVer! And I simply DREAD to think of what will HAPpen to him if he sort of FALLS for some unSCRUPulous GIRL who is the type that is just OUT for all she can GET out of a man, my dear, because ARab, my dear, is so THORoughly inGEnious that a girl like that could RUin him in about five MINutes only I MUST say I don't know WHAT she could get OUT of him because he is the TIGHTest mortal in the WORLD with his MONey, my dear. I mean he HONestly acts like he thought he was a philANthropist every time he treats you to an ice cream SOda—you know the TYPE!"

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

Lillian Exhibits the New Home She Is Preparing for Her Lovely Daughter

"ISN'T she the eighth wonder?" Mr. Veritzen whispered to me as we followed Lillian and her attendant bellboy down the hotel corridor to the elevator. "Of course that triumph over me was a mirthful trifle, but it is so indicative of her personality. I never yet have seen her worsted by any opponent, either in jest or earnest. And yet, sometimes I fear that she cannot always conquer Fate."

I guessed what lay behind his words. I had seen that covertly his keen eyes had appraised every detail of Lillian's rather shabby living quarters in the old-fashioned hotel in which she had elected to make her home while her young daughter was away at school. The explanation of her Spartan surroundings had been given me by Lillian herself, and I knew that the rigid economy she was practicing did not result from any lack of income, for orders never had been so plentiful nor so well paid as at the present time. She had told me that she was planning a "suitable nest" for Marion during her vacations, and I guessed that "suitable" meant everything that could make her darling's life smooth and happy.

"On the contrary, I am sure she can," I murmured in answer, and as if in confirmation of my words, Lillian turned after pushing the elevator bell and smiled at Mr. Veritzen.

"Phil," she said, "can you keep that chauffeur of yours waiting for five minutes—I promise it won't be longer than that, while I show Madge my new home—you also, if you will deign to look at it."

"An hour if you wish," he returned promptly, with perfect gallantry, although we both knew him well enough to be sure that inwardly he was chafing at the delay in getting started upon our trip to the inn of his choice among the hills overlooking the Hudson River. But, I told myself with a touch of gratified malice, it was his own fault for permitting any faintest surprise at Lillian's surroundings to appear in his face. I knew that he had fancied himself so adroit in his glances as to preclude all discovery of his inspection, but he had not counted upon the sharpness of feminine intuition, especially where sore sensibilities were concerned. That Lillian loathed her present surroundings I knew, and was sure that she had recognized Philip Veritzen's reaction to her rooms.

"Nothing else becomes Otto so much as his waiting ability," Otto's master went on. "He has what my cook calls 'a noble figger,' and I think he loves to display it while posing at attention beside the car."

The stopping of the elevator punctuated our laughter at his sally, and at a word from Lillian we swiftly were taken to the top floor of the building, the widely-smiling bell-boy ostentatiously displaying a floor pass key with which when we stopped at the top floor, he opened the door of a suite of rooms which made me exclaim in admiration of their possibilities.

The apartment was a corner one, with sunlight filling every room, and a glance from the windows showed me the balcony outside which Lillian so likes. The large living room ran the whole length of the apartment, with windows on both sides, while opposite a real fireplace stood ready for the blaze which is a necessity not a luxury to her. Ivory tinted, built-in bookcases, empty now, but presenting fascinating possibilities lined every available bit of wall space, their tops the exact height of the mantel, presenting ideal resting places for the rare curios which are Lillian's. Back of the living room were three bedrooms, ample closets, a large bathroom, and what she informed us was a "real, honest-to-goodness kitchen."

"I couldn't wait until it was decorated to have you see it," she told me—she made it appear all through the inspection that I was the one to whom she was showing her new home. "You see this was the home of one of the original owners of this co-operative apartment hotel. He suddenly decided to spend the rest of his days in California, and I got the chance to rent it. It's the bulliest studio apartment in the world, and I have things in storage which will just fit it. Do you remember my white and crimson drawing room, Madge?"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Ward Off Age by Keeping the Mind Young

AS I WRITE I am on a train running from Washington to New York. The coloring of the leaves is gorgeous. Every shade of red can be seen in the beautiful woods.

DR. COPELAND

By the time these words are printed, this gayly painted foliage will have fallen to earth. Winter will be here.

The winter of life is drawing near. With each passing season we advance on the way. In all too short a time we will be numbered with the old folks.

What is your attitude of mind toward old age? Are you settling down to it and accepting it as inevitable? Are you depressed and saddened, perhaps soured, by it?

If there is one fact in psychology we should learn, it is that old age, as we understand it, is largely a state of mind. You are as old as you feel.

To give in to the calendar and stop doing this and that because you are past 60, or past 70, is fatal to the spirit of youth. If you think you are old you are old. To continue to think youthful thoughts and to do youthful things, is to keep your youth.

When I see a woman who is known to me to be past what we call middle life and yet insists on nice dresses, marceled hair and neat footwear, I take off my hat to her. She is perennially young in spirit and will stay young in body long after her contemporaries have died of old age.

I have in mind as I write a sweet woman who admits being 72 years of age. I'll swear she is younger in spirits than her daughters. She has more "pep," more "essence," more real energy than any of her offspring.

This lady keeps an interest in every-day affairs. She is ready to discuss modern styles, the new books, current politics, and all the events of the day. She is living in this generation. Today's affairs hold her interest. Consequently she is young. She hasn't left off.

Suppose this good woman sat down in an easy chair and gave up to the past. She would be shedding tears every day over her departed husband and other dear friends who have gone. She would mourn over the "degenerate period," contrasting it with the "good old times." She would be sad and weepy and miserable.

But what's the use! We cannot help mourning over the loss of our dear ones, but unless we are false to the religion we profess we would not recall one of them from a place in glory. Neither would one of them have us sad and forlorn. If we have no other reason for sweetness and cheerfulness, let us cultivate these virtues for the sake of our blessed memories.

When we recall our friends, we think of them as active and hearty and strong and happy. We loved them for their good spirits. Let us live happy and active lives. Then when the end does come we will be fit for those renewed companionships of the other shore.

Smile at Babies You See in Cars, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

I HAVE come to the conclusion that mothers when riding on the car with their babies, should hold the precious infants facing themselves instead of facing other occupants of the car.

I came to this conclusion the other day. A sweet mother, with a priceless infant boarded the car.

The youngster was like a little flower. The woolly knit suit, warm little bonnet; the mittens, the ribbons, everything being works of love to the mother hands that had made them.

Settled in a seat, the baby, wide-eyed with the wonder of this great big world and everything and everybody in it looked about him with great interest.

Little by little a frown came. Then a tear. Then a shriek, and the youngster yowled with healthy lung power!

It seemed this was going to last indefinitely, but lo! at the next stop some got off and some got on.

Among those who got on was a jolly delivery boy whistling a popular tune. This merry music stopped the baby's crying so that he could better hear where this jolly entertainment came from.

Finally the youngster spied the boy. And instantly there passed between them a smile.

More tunes, more smiles. No crying baby now!

I did not blame the baby for crying in the first place. Here is a little soul that meets nothing but cooing, cuddling and smiles and soft, sweet expressions among those at home who love him so much.

Suddenly he finds himself completely surrounded with faces that are deep in thought and plans and schemes.

To him they are scowling, cross faces. He knows nothing about deep thought and business schemes and regrets and sorrow and worry! We'd be frightened, too, of faces like these if we didn't know from experience that they are only deep in thought—and tired like we are.

But we should never be too tired to smile at a baby.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHY WOMEN WORRY ABOUT MEN

ONE of man's pet hobbies is the secret conviction that a woman "just loves to worry!"

* * *

Well—perhaps he's right. But there's a reason! In one week, two women in New York City were shot and killed by two men, for failing to call said men in time for work. Wouldn't THAT worry you?

* * *

The mechanical alarm clocks did not go off; and the human alarm clocks were not on the job.

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman has GOT to do a man's worrying for him, or he'll find out why?

* * *

Whether it's worrying about where he is nights or when he shall get up mornings; about what he'd like to eat or what he ought not to eat; about how he overworks or why he doesn't work harder; about when he should take his tonic or where he left his overshoes; about how to make him stay in the house or how to get him into heaven—it's all up to the woman!

* * *

Before marriage, he calls it "mothering" him; after marriage, he calls it "nagging" him. And if she stopped it, he'd call it "neglecting" him.

But he loves it!

Nothing gives a man such a luxurious feeling as to turn over and placidly doze for five or ten minutes more in the sweet consciousness that his wife is "worrying" because he won't get up.

* * *

When a woman reaches the point where she stops worrying about what time her husband comes home, nights, it takes half the "kick" out of his pleasures. When she stops worrying about whether or not he loves her, it robs his little flirtations of all their piquancy and flavor.

* * *

When a woman marries a man, she elects herself the little shock-absorber between him and all the petty cares and anxieties of life—and appoints herself his memory, time-clock, conscience and digestion.

* * *

Up to his wedding day, the average man can take perfectly good care of himself. He can find his own things, remember to have his hair cut, always be on time at the office, keep his evening clothes pressed, write the weekly letter to his mother, and keep out of jail.

But from the moment he promises to "cherish" a woman, he apparently loses all his faculties; his memory, his sense of responsibility, and the physical strength to lift things after he has dropped them on the floor.

* * *

The truth is, that a man just loves to be "worried about"—and a woman just loves to worry about him.

* * *

That is what they MARRY for!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, December 1.

Remember to preserve an even mind in adverse circumstances, and equally in good fortune a mind free from insolence.

—HORACE.

ACCORDING to the stellar mutations of this day there may be trials, discord and futile activities unless great care be exercised to keep control of tongue and temper. Rash and hasty deeds and words may arouse rancor and subtle enmities, as well as gossip and slander. And these may react on personal affiliations. There may be an opening for change of fair advantage.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a year calling for a large measure of calmness, poise and general self-control, in order to offset conditions due to strife and contention. Gossip and slander may be far-reaching as well as subtle, reacting on the personal life. There may be a change of benefit.

A child born on this day should be disciplined from infancy in self-government and moderation in all things. It may be skillful and of scientific leanings, but prone to subtlety and stratagem.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

HOT BISCUITS in less time

Whenever I want to serve hot biscuits and haven't the time to roll and cut them, I make drop biscuits.

I use my master biscuit recipe—simply making the batter a little softer by adding extra milk and dropping this batter on baking pans with a spoon. No need to touch the dough with my hands—no table, rolling-pin or sticky hands to wash afterwards! A real saving of time and trouble!

On this page I am giving recipes for both rolled and drop biscuits—also for some fancy biscuits, all variations of the master recipe.

2 new time-saving suggestions

I make all these biscuits with Crisco—for Crisco gives me the lightest, flakiest biscuits I have ever had and in the years I have been cooking I have tried almost everything.

You can mix all the ingredients in the recipe except the milk, keep this mixture in the ice-box and have fresh hot biscuits without taking time to mix them just at meal time. As Crisco itself stays sweet and fresh so long, the mixture will keep a week or longer.

Really I do not know how I could keep house without all the good things to eat that Crisco gives me: Cakes that you cannot tell from butter cakes; tender, flaky pie crusts; light, feathery muffins; and all kinds of wonderful fried foods, without smoke, unpleasant odor or waste.

Whole Wheat Biscuits (Rolled)
with or without raisins

Use one cup whole wheat flour in place of 1 cup bread flour. Add ½ cup Sultana Raisins before adding milk.

Lemon or Orange Tea Biscuits
(Dropped or Rolled)

Stir in 1 teaspoon grated rind before adding milk.

Maple Nut Biscuits
(Rolled)

Roll dough ¼ inch thick, spread with ⅓ cup shaved maple sugar mixed with 3 tablespoons Crisco. Roll and cut as for cheese biscuits. Lay in pan, sprinkle maple sugar over each and bake with ½ walnut in center.

Peanut Biscuits
(Rolled)

Sift 1 tablespoon sugar with dry ingredients. Beat two eggs, add enough milk to make ⅔ cup. Stir in ½ cup chopped peanuts before adding milk.

Master Recipe
for both "Drop" and "Rolled" Biscuits

2 cups bread flour	¾ cup milk or water (for "drop" biscuits) or
3 teaspoons baking powder	⅔ cup milk or water (for "rolled biscuits)
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons Crisco

Sift dry ingredients together 3 times. Work Crisco in with fork. Add liquid gradually.

FOR "DROP" (Emergency) BISCUITS: drop by spoonfuls on Crisco'ed baking pan. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

FOR ROLLED BISCUITS: form dough into shape, roll ½ inch thick, cut. For scone-shaped biscuits, cut squares, then diagonally in half. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

To use buttermilk or sour milk beat in ¼ teaspoon soda for each cup of milk. (If milk is very thick, use a little more milk.) Use same amount of baking powder and follow method for either "drop" or "rolled" biscuits.

An Astonishing Blindfold Test

SEE if this doesn't give you the greatest surprise of your whole cooking experience!

Put a little Crisco on the tip of one spoon. On the tip of another place a little of the fat you are now using; have someone blindfold you, and give you first one, then the other fat to taste.

Now, did you ever imagine there could be such a striking difference in the taste of raw cooking fats? Think what an improvement Crisco's sweetness and freshness will make in your own cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

Cheese Rolls (Rolled)
Delicious for soups and salads

Roll dough ¼ inch thick. Sprinkle with about ¾ cup (grated) cheese. Roll as you would jelly roll. Cut slices ¾ inch thick, lay in Crisco'ed pan cut side down.

Delicious Raisin Biscuits
(Rolled)

Sift ⅓ cup sugar with dry ingredients. Beat one egg, add enough more milk to make ⅔ cup. Stir in ½ cup chopped raisins before adding milk.

Date Biscuits
(Rolled)

Follow recipe for Peanut Biscuits omitting nuts. Roll thin, cut in rounds, put stoned date in center, wet edges, fold over, press together.

Cheese Biscuits
(Dropped or Rolled)

Stir in ½ cup grated cheese before adding milk.

To test your cooking fat, taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

Will Owen Young Become Leading U. S. Industrialist?

By B. C. FORBES

JUDGE GARY often was described as America's foremost industrialist. Who will be the next to earn that distinction?

As one candidate I would name Owen D. Young.

MR. YOUNG'S business position is not less important than was Judge Gary's. Indeed, it is distinctly wider in its ramifications.

Mr. Young is the active head of General Electric, with its one hundred thousand employes, its domestic activities reaching every state and its foreign operations extending to every civilized country on the face of the earth. That in itself is a position as influential as any in the United States.

He was among our first big men to sense the possibilities of radio and he has devoted much time and thought to its improvement, development, application and expansion.

His earliest achievements, when he was a young lawyer, were in the public utility field, and today he is recognized as a factor of tremendous influence in shaping the principles and policies of utility corporations. Since the death of his predecessor, C. A. Coffin, no other man's views are more earnestly sought on utility problems affecting the public interest.

And he has other business associations and responsibilities.

EARLY in life Owen D. Young became convinced that business and financial leaders owed their fellow men and their country something more than strictly money-making activities. Therefore, he willingly undertook various public services. Although a Democrat, he has served upon commissions and committees appointed by Republican as well as by Democratic Presidents. As a matter of fact, it was Republican President Coolidge who selected this Democrat as a member of the Dawes commission, a selection which proved extraordinarily fruitful, as it is well known that Mr. Young contributed more than any other man to evolving agreement out of disagreement and chaos.

EVERY now and again someone writes to his favorite newspaper, suggesting the nomination of Young as a Democratic candidate for the presidency. He himself, however, laughs at such talk. He positively refuses to take it at all seriously. But you never know what may happen in politics.

WHAT manner of man is this possible successor to Judge Gary as one recognized leader of America's industrialists?

THERE is no broader-gauged business statesman in the land. There is none less mercenary. There are few who possess as advanced ideas concerning the rights and the treatment of the working classes, both in industry and on our farms. He remarked to me the other day:

"I hope we will come to the day when human beings who give their lives to the job—if you want to call that labor—will be the employer and capital will be the commodity which they buy for their own account. The profits should be distributed among the human beings devoting their lives to the concerns. They all should share regardless of position.

"Not merely a living wage, but a cultural wage, must be the basis for the solving of the economic system of tomorrow.

"You cannot have good economics and bad social conditions."

MR. YOUNG also declares that it is imperative that the nation adopt measures to improve the lot of our farmers "Even if we have to take steps for which we have no precedent"—just as the Dawes commission did—for, he declares, "insufficient farming would inevitably lead to dear food, and it is cheap food that lies at the very foundation of a nation's fitness to meet world competition."

Is it not gratifying that such an outstanding figure, destined to such far-reaching influence, takes such a liberal, democratic, humane attitude towards ordinary mortals who, after all, comprise the great majority of this nation?

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—There were no sales in the local raw sugar market today, but the undertone was steady and prices were unchanged at 4.52c for Cuban, duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market was firmer on covering and some trade and outside demand, which seemed to be prompted by a reduction of 112,000 tons in the European beet sugar crop estimate, and to a steadier feeling in the London market. A leading European crop expert reduced his estimate for the new crop there to 8,660,000 tons, which compared with his previous estimate of 8,772,000 tons and last year's century of 8,907,262 tons. The market opened 1 point lower to 1 point higher, but quickly firmed up and at one time showed net advances of about 2 points for all deliveries. Houses with Cuban connections sold on the upturn, however, and at midday prices were a little off from the best and about 1 to 2 points above the previous close.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.60 to 5.80c for fine granulated.

HEAVY BIDDING FORCES STOCKS UPWARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Violent bidding for special stocks sent more than a score issues to new high records in today's stock market, with gains running from 1 to 7 points. So great was the volume of trading, however, that the ticker fell 22 minutes behind the market by early afternoon, causing widespread confusion in brokerage houses and bringing about considerable liquidation, with resultant irregularity in prices. Trading averaged more than 500,000 shares an hour in the first three hours.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported consumption as steady, with general expectation of a rising scale of activity next month. Another advance in the price of export copper helped the non-ferrous metal shares, Nevada and Cerro de Pasco reaching new high ground. Heavy selling of Pan-American "B" and American Republics, each of which broke 4 points, brought about sympathetic selling of other oils.

General Motors and United States Steel common were sluggish most of the session. Radio touched a new high just under $100 a share and then sagged a few points on realizing. Albany Paper jumped 7 points to a new top, Warner Brothers nearly 6, and Rossia Insurance, Electric Storage Battery and Montgomery Ward advanced 4 points or more. The list of new highs includes Sears Roebuck, Goodrich Rubber, Stewart-Warner, Abitibi Power, Corn Products and National Biscuit.

Rails also presented several points of strength. Buying of Wabash and Pere Marquette was based on expectations of a substantial increase in freight traffic through the reopening of the Ford plants. Canadian Pacific and Western Maryland also recorded substantial gains.

Money was in fairly plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 4 per cent.

Standard Sanitary Sells Higher

Prices displayed an upward tendency on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today although movements in the first half of the session were narrow and most of the business was of the odd lot variety. Heaviest trading took place in Lone Star Gas, but there was a fair volume of business transacted in the various manufacturing issues.

The sudden upturn in Blaw Knox Steel which carried the price up nine points to 110 on Tuesday afternoon evidently forecast some special action on dividends as the stock was strong again today and reached another new high record level. Standard Sanitary also maintained Monday's gain which amounted to about two points.

Several hundred shares of Lone Star changed hands early today on a slight rise but the Street was still in the dark in regard to the "deal" rumored to be under negotiation. It had been thought in some quarters that Standard Oil of New York would take over the property but latest rumors are to the effect that the buyers are interests "nearer home." Traders interpret this intimation as meaning that Columbia Gas and Electric may turn up with the property before the end of the year.

The Arkansas Gas "deal" is also said to be at the closing point but official information on the subject is unobtainable. The Insull interests of Chicago and Cities Service (Doherty interests) are reported to have plans prepared for a holding company which will take over Arkansas and other companies operating in the Southwest territory. According to Street gossip the deal involves only the gas properties of the Arkansas company and a transfer of securities representing par value of well over $10 a share is said to be the price at which the gas end of the Arkansas business will go into the transaction.

The new high price, 111⅝, which the Blaw Knox shares rose in the early market proved too much of an attraction to some holders of the stock and enough selling came into the market to break it down several points. Volume of offerings was not noticeably heavy, however. On the other hand, Standard Sanitary continued its upward movement and was within a few points of the highest on record for the present shares. Pittsburgh Plate Glass scored another 5-point rise today, reaching 225, the best price since the entire list of local glass stock suffered a sinking spell several weeks ago.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP.)—Fresh downturns in wheat values here took place early today, reflecting lower quotations at Liverpool than were due. Increased estimates of Argentine wheat production continued to exercise a bearish influence. Opening at ¼ to ½c off, Chicago wheat held near to the initial range. Corn, oats and provisions were also inclined to sag, with corn starting unchanged to ⅛c down and later showing a setback all around.

Weakness of the Liverpool wheat market today, which had a depressing effect on the Chicago pit, was associated with liquidation of December contracts abroad, heavy tenders of red winter grades at Liverpool being looked for tomorrow. Besides, indications pointed to dearth of immediate new export business in wheat from North America. On the other hand, it was announced that European import requirements for the season would total 683,840,000 bushels against 597,800,000 bushels last year.

Cold wave predictions gave a downward impulse to corn values much of the time today. Husking returns, however, were reported as continuing to indicate that final official figures on corn yield will have to be substantially reduced from those of November 1.

Dodge Brothers Dealers Final Sale of 1927

THOUSANDS SATISFIED IN PAST YEARS

AUTO SALE

TERMS—TERMS TERMS—TERMS

IMPORTANT WARNING

We ask the public to make strict note of our heading—"Dodge Brothers Dealers' Final Sale."

There is a sharp distinction between a Genuine Sale and a mere "fly by night" rush of stagnant stock, which often might be thrust upon them almost weekly by ones who would abuse the meaning of the word "sale." There is a distinction and a difference you should understand for your protection. The counts of thousands of satisfied customers sustain our used car sales. We have a sale only when some equitable business reason compels it. AN ANNOUNCEMENT OF NO IMPORTANCE

There seems to be such a confusion of tongues among the great parties as to candidates and platforms for the next presidential campaign, I have yielded to the prayers of my myriad admirers and will run for the Presidency in 1928.

THERE being already a third party headed by Senator Norris, who is well known—in his home state—our party shall be the fourth party. Having to choose an emblem aside from the elephant, donkey and bull moose, we have chosen the hyena.

The platform will deal rigorously with all live issues. Our platform committee, composed of H. L. Mencken, Sinclair Lewis and Bull Montana, has just made its report. The salient features follow:

TARIFF: We promise to do something with this tariff. Every new administration must promise that. It gives something to talk about when one doesn't care to discuss the really important issues. It is the greatest alibi in American politics.

GOVERNMENT: We favor a continuance of government by investigation instead of representation. We have one or two good friends in the hotel business in Washington and like to see them make money.

PROHIBITION: Tut-tut!

THE CONSTITUTION: We favor keeping the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution. The reason we favor this is that there is no possible way to get it out. Let the Constitution follow the jag.

STATES' RIGHTS: We believe that every State should have the right to say whether one of its citizens is drunk or sober. If a man's neighbors are satisfied with his conduct—and they are the severest critics, always—we do not see that it concerns the people of a State two thousand miles away.

ALCOHOLIC CONTENT: We believe that the alcoholic content of all patent medicines should be printed plainly on the label so that the purchaser can make sure he is not being cheated.

SLAVERY: We are unalterably opposed to slavery in the South—or anywhere else. We favor the raising of the wages of mail carriers, bookkeepers and college professors.

DIVORCE: We shall force a uniform divorce law. Believe that if every good-looking blonde divorcee wears a uniform it will be a great safeguard for eligible gentlemen who do not want to get married.

WEATHER: We urge a drastic change in the weather. We favor having cold weather in the winter months and warm weather in the summer months. Under the present administration these conditions have been reversed and the people have not got their money's worth.

FARM RELIEF: We believe in financial relief for the farmers. ALSO FOR THE POOR CITY BOOBS WHO HAVE TO BUY FARM PRODUCTS.

OUR platform committee will meet every week to go over, or we might say overlook, any suggestions that may come in from the public by mail. We promise to promise anything. If there is anything that we will not promise, it has not yet been invented.

This is going to be a regular party.

Make Jail Improvements But Preserve Its Beauty

Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects, is properly concerned lest the beauty of one of the foremost architectural monuments on the American continent be marred. This is the jail unit of the group comprising the courthouse and county prison. In the words of the board of directors of the chapter, this group is "an internationally famed architectural masterpiece, Pittsburgh's one example of the work of the first GREAT (the capitals are ours) American architect, H. H. Richardson."

The chapter's board has addressed a communication protesting against a proposed destruction of the jail structure. Helpfully, it makes suggestions for preserving the beauty of the group and even enhancing its esthetic qualities by removing the jail wall and parts of cell-blocks and providing open spaces for landscaping.

It is hoped the Board of County Commissioners, to which the communication of the architects is addressed, will give full consideration to the suggestion of men who have made the study of structural beauty their life's work.

It is no small thing to put a destructive hand upon the work of a man whose career is noted in the architectural progress of America. In the record of that progress the American Encyclopedia states: "With the Romanesque style as his vehicle, Richardson left an artistic imprint upon the nation's art that continues to the present day. Structural verity and dignity of mass mark his works. (Trinity Church, Boston; County buildings in Pittsburgh)."

When treasure is in hand it is well to go slowly before deciding to dispose of it.

Husband by Rule

Commandments for husbands are no novelty, even if those drawn up by Miss Dorothy Bacher of East Orange, N. J., for the guidance of her partner-to-be have attracted much attention.

This husband will have a big advantage over the average bridegroom when he enters upon matrimony, in the form of definite rules by which to shape his conduct.

He mustn't drink nor smoke, nor talk about his old love affairs, if any; he must be neat, affectionate, indulgent, say his prayers and help with the dishes.

That's simple enough. But most men have to learn their commandments as they go along, a slow and often painful process. After many years they may still be discovering new ones.

Of course this New Jersey experiment is obviously one-sided. What's sauce for the gander should also be sauce for the goose. A set of commandments for the wife would make everything complete. Then each party to the arrangement could set blithely forth, rules in hand, and live happily ever after.

Maybe.

Just to Prove It Possible

This "Blimp" Landed on the Schoolhouse Roof

A REMARKABLE FLYING PERFORMANCE

Secretary Davis, head of the army under President Coolidge, really interested in flying, and to the extent of Congress' appropriations does all he can to further the development of aviation.

This picture shows an army "blimp" landing successfully on a schoolhouse roof, just to prove that it could land on a roof.

The army "blimp," an inflated balloon on its way to help celebrate "Navy Day," hovered over the roof of a schoolhouse in Newport News and lit, landing passengers and mail on the roof. Then it continued on its errand.

Every new step in aviation is important, encouraging further development, showing what can be done.

What this army "blimp" does "just to show it can be done" will be the regular thing before long. There will be different kinds of flying machines and different landing places. But just as sure as human progress is steady, the great cities of the future will see flying machines landing on roofs, as you now see sparrows landing on them.

Passengers, clerks, employers, laborers, flying from their homes on far-away hilltops, will GO DOWN in the elevators instead of going up.

Cities will be built consisting of one gigantic factory, office building or store. Clerks and customers will fly to the stores, workers will fly to the factories, then fly home again.

Cities as we known them, with crowded dark streets, will not last forever.

Buy your building lots on tops of hills or mountains. But don't be in too much of a hurry to sell your city corner lot.

Work for Enjoyment

The writer of a successful book, which also made a successful play and brought great royalties, is credited with an intent that many in dreams have shared—to "enjoy life without work."

It cannot be done. Life without work, after the first novelty of leisure had worn off, would slowly become torture.

Rather fortunately we are so made that to do something useful well constitutes, with one addition, just about the earthly satisfactions. That one addition is to have

The Well-Balanced Mother ∴ ∴ By DR. FRANK CRANE

A GOOD example of the well-balanced mother is Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh.

When her heroic young son started on his now world-famous non-stop flight, Detroit school officials thought that Mrs. Lindbergh should take a vacation. She demurred and wanted to stay at her post, but the school authorities insisted that her duties be temporarily abandoned.

The reporters sought her the day young Lindbergh was making his great flight and found her out in her garden among the flowers. She was not in the house weeping. Neither was she sitting inside discussing her boy's possible fate with consoling friends.

The newspaper men reported that she wore a smile, was busy digging in the garden and appeared to be happy and confident.

What better evidence of a sound and well-balanced mind could be found!

When Mrs. Lindbergh was asked if she did not wish to go abroad and share her son's honors she replied that he was in the hands of friends and did not need her.

This kind of mind is the result of mental control—discipline, courage and firmness of will. It follows in the wake of clear thinking, combined with common sense. It is no mere happening.

Of course the well-balanced mind has character. This is the foundation stone imbedded in a woman's consciousness which takes root before she knows much about mental control of her faculties or herself.

It is not strange that young Lindbergh, having been the beneficiary of a well-balanced mother's guiding hand in his early years, showed rare poise and judgment in all he said and did during the time he was being showered with honors, both by kings and the people.

Later, when the money tempters failed to reach Colonel Lindbergh with their offers they turned their attention to his mother, thinking middle age might yield, but she, too, refused to sacrifice her fine idealism for pelf.

The well-balanced mother is a priceless heritage to her family, her friends and all with whom she comes in contact, for her influence is tremendous and powerful. She never seeks the plaudits of the multitude and nothing equals her power for good.

The example set by Mrs. Lindbergh and her son will do much to raise the world's conception of Americans and also to teach Americans a truer appreciation of life's real values.

New York Day by Day by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The theater has one inexorable law: "The show must go on." It is an ingrained part of the business—from Tom shows to the Broadway successes. Earthquake, fire, flood or sudden death must never stop a performance.

Every trouper observes it with the fervor of a religious zealot. It has been the theme of a thousand stories, plays and cinema dramas. It has been handed down through the ages and is one of the most romantic high spots of a romantic profession.

The cruelty of it is often obvious. Frequently players receive messages announcing the death of their loved ones while making up for their parts. They cannot falter. Once inside the theater they cannot leave it. They must go through their lines.

The late Ben Welch offered a conspicuous example of his loyalty to the credo. The comedian was in the midst of a scene with Frances White. She handed him a letter, but his hand groped in a wrong direction and it fluttered to the floor.

In a flash, he had been stricken blind. He continued his comedy business, finishing with a song and grotesque dance and went stumbling off into the wings and for the rest of his stage career remained in the land of eternal night.

A vaudeville hoofer and his female partner were executing intricate steps at the Palace several years ago. The audience heard a crack like a pistol shot and the girl hopped to the wings with a broken dangling leg. The hoofer carried her smilingly aloft on his shoulder for the final bow.

Stage people are carelessly indifferent about ordinary matters. They will not hesitate to skyrocket in a burst of temperament, be late to rehearsals and such. But when it comes to violating the code—"the show must go on"—that is something else again.

For some months now city dwellers living in the East Forty section have been aroused in the early morning by the moo of a cow. Nobody has been able to solve the mystery. It is a skyscraper and hotel district and no place for a cow. Wherever Bossy is, she is proving she has no sympathy for late sleepers. She may be one of those innumerable girls who followed a villain to the city only to be spurned.

In a Broadway cafe, a radio announcer calls out names of celebrities and near ones as they march to their tables. It proved rather disastrous for one who came in with a blonde dangling on his arm. His wife happened to be listening at that precise moment and in a half hour she descended on the cafe and then on her husband. He was led out by the coat collar and those who have been led out that way say it isn't much fun.

In another cafe two chorus girls were dining together. Another chorine came in and sat at a nearby table. A jealous rivalry over a boy friend existed between one of the two girls and the newcomer.

"They tell me she is a Tulsa, Okla., girl," observed the friend.

"She couldn't be," sniffed the rival. "Tulsa is not that old."

All of which recalls that an art dealer announces Oklahoma is now buying more fine pictures than any other state and fashionable modistes declare the women of that state are the heaviest buying customers. A few years ago we thought of Oklahoma in terms of bandanaed cowboys, back-yard oil wells and suddenly opulent Indians with chickens roosting on their grand pianos.

A fellow stopped me on Madison avenue this morning and asked if I happened to be Mayor Walker. I replied I wasn't and he observed that I did not look like him. And I walked two blocks before I realized I had perhaps been kidded.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

School Manias

THE great solid State of Ohio, whose quadrate form on the map, like a square head, suggests strength, sturdiness and having common sense, is contributing some valuable facts and ideas to the discussion of the problem of popular education, which now presses with increasing force upon the attention of thoughtful people and payers of bounding local taxes, in every State of the Union.

In a report of a recent address by Vernon M. Riegel, state director of education in Ohio, we read that many teachers in that state "do not know the subjects they are teaching, fail to keep the purposes of education in mind and adhere to methods of teaching rather than fundamentals of subjects. Teachers cannot apply the principles of teaching arithmetic if they don't know arithmetic."

Mr. Riegel ascribes this condition to the abolition some years ago of the law which required every person wishing to be a teacher to pass an examination in the subjects to be taught, and the substitution therefor of teacher training schools, credits from which entitle would-be teachers to obtain four-year certificates without examination. "Life certificates in Ohio," he added, "are so cheap and plentiful that they mean nothing."

Charles Franklin Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve University, declares that "the methods of teaching a student how to make a living through vocational courses have been unwise in method, extravagant in expenses and ineffective in result. The methods have been thoroughly superficial. They have generally been worthless for achieving the purposes which have inspired them."

Testimony supporting these statements flows in from every side, and yet ambitious boards of education, many of whose members know as much about the real principles of education as they do about the Einstein theory are harassing the taxpayers in towns and villages all over the country with demands to countersign ever-growing bonds, in order that additions may be made to the smattering curriculum, which is said to run in the Cleveland (O.) high schools "from plumbing and bricklaying to tea pouring, baby washing and the latest fad called charm, or look cute."

And these "frills," says Mr. James F. Walsh, of Cleveland, who is leading a crusade against what he calls "sanctified squander," are taught to pupils many of whom do not know elementary arithmetic. "Where does the money go?" asks Mr. Walsh, and answers the question himself:

"Part of it has gone into school buildings, some of which were recently described as 'finer than the palaces of the princesses of Europe.' Some of it has gone into monumental buildings for school headquarters, where two are employed at a one-man task. Much of it goes for extravagant salaries for school politicians."

The "school politician" is Mr. Walsh's bete noir, to whom he ascribes the "Bing law" making school attendance compulsory up to 18 years of age. As to the effects of this law, he quotes the opinion of an Ohio educator that "it has been making idiots, truants and criminals of youths."

Meanwhile the bonded indebtedness of the Ohio school districts has increased from $17,000,000 in 1910, to $219,000,000 in 1926, while the number of pupils in the same time increased only from 838,000 to 1,255,000. Between 1920 and 1926 the school expenditures doubled. "The neglect of the tax payer," declares Mr. Walsh, "makes the tax spender bold and the tax eater insolent."

That, at least, is an axiom of universal application.

Learn From Others

HAVE you met persons who seemed to know so much that it overwhelmed you?

You felt so uncomfortable that you could not even bring the knowledge you have to your command.

Perhaps you made the mistake of saying something without giving sufficient thought to your utterances to realize just what you did say.

Far from being nonplussed in the presence of a well-posted person you should welcome the opportunity as one of great importance to you.

It is an easy matter to find a number of persons from whom you might gain knowledge or who might arouse a line of reasoning which would stimulate you to valuable conclusions.

It is unusual to have the privilege of listening to a learned person with a storehouse of information which you have never gained.

Don't feel badly because you cannot talk.

It may be a good thing you can't talk for it is the time to listen.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

With You

IT RESTS with you if joy or care prevail,
With you to tune your days to song or sigh;
No force, no foe can make you wholly fail,
No lure can tempt you and no fear defy.

With you the issue: victory, defeat;
Though it is true the wide world gives renown,
It rests with you to make your trials sweet
And wear your weight of trouble like a crown.

It rests with you. The wise have always known
There is no magic spell to charm delight,
No potent potion king or clown can own
To flood his path with loveliness and light.

With you, then, all the prices of triumph lies
When gladness out of grief you wrest at last,
As when beneath the sullen autumn skies
The falling leaves reveal the west east.

I'D BEEN sitting there.

FOR TRISTAN TO die.

Personal Liberty

IN the red riot of modern individualism, when sane liberty too often degenerates into insane license, it may be well to recognize the fact that personal liberty has metes and bounds.

A man has liberty to swing his fist but his liberty stops where the other man's nose begins.

Personal liberty doesn't mean that you may keep a kennel of mad dogs in the school yard.

Personal liberty doesn't mean that you may utilize the kindergarten for a rattlesnake cage.

Personal liberty doesn't mean that you may run your car on a Tam o' Shanter down the crowded stree

Per doesn't me

you may build a slaughter hous right next to the church on th boulevard.

Personal liberty doesn't mean tha you may kiss every pink and pretty temptation that you may happen t meet on the sidewalk.

Personal liberty doesn't mean tha you may do the Charleston down th middle aisle of the church on Sunda morning.

The personal liberty demanded b some men would make a home a do mestic Donnybrook Fair. It woul make an orchestra a tomcat choru and a legislature a pandemonium.

I suppose Tamerlane called it hi personal liberty when he demanded
